CHURCHILL SON SPEAKS HERE

America's depression is slight in comparison with England's present condition in the viewpoint of Randolph S. Churchill, son of the English statesman, Winston Spencer Churchill, who was in Pittsburgh today to address the Woman's Club of Sewickley.

While serious in the discussion of international affairs, it was with a blush young Churchill denied the reported romance with a Cleveland department store owner's daughter. He admitted appearing in the Ohio city for a speaking engagement, but he cannot remember the names of those he met. At least, that is his story.

Still a student at Oxford, Churchill, in his nineteenth year, gives more consideration to the world affairs than any other problem. He feels in his youth that politics will be his life's work. To him, the government's ability to aid the unemployed is a matter misunderstood. Churchill said:

"I cannot understand why such a squawk is made here about the unemployed. The situation is much worse in England. Lloyd George advanced the idea of the government of provinces of building roads, but no one has taken it seriously."

When asked about prohibtion in this coutry, Churchill said:

"Prohibition? Why I thought it was repealed. Does it still exist?"

'One Light' Crusade Nets 200 Motorists

More than 60 motorists were to get hearings in Traffic Court today in the city-wide crusade against "one-light" automobile drivers. A special squad of 16 motorcycle patrolmen launched the drive last week by orders of Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey. More than 200 violators have received summonses. Hearings are scheduled every day this week.

Two Found Dead From Gas Fumes

HOME RUINED BY BLAST, 1 BURNED

Lawrenceville Mother Badly Burned, Children Unhurt; Cause Not Determined

A mother was hurt and her two babies and a sister escaped injury when an explosion rocked and ripped their two-story brick home at 5322 Kent way, Lawrenceville, at nooon today.

The mother, Mrs. Carl Baden, 31, was in the cellar when the blast, which originated there, due, possibly to a gas leak, shattered the front wall of the house and wrecked the front rooms on the first and second floors.

The babies—1-year-old Billie and 3-year-old Anna May—were playing in the front room downstairs, but miraculously escaped injury. Passersby rescued them.

SISTER JOLTED FROM BED

Asleep upstairs, Mrs. Baden's sister, Esther Krause, 18, a telephone operator, was jolted from her bed, but was not hurt. She was carried out by George Preston, of 5332 Keystone street, who was passing.

Two other Baden children—Clara, 8, and Bernard, 10—came home from McCandless school to find their home wrecked. The father, Carl Baden, a street car motorman, was called.

Fire Capt. James O'Hara rescued Mrs. Baden and rushed her to St. Margaret's Hospital, where she was treated for severe burns of the face and body.

WAS REPLACING FUSE

Mrs. Baden told police she had gone to the cellar to put in a new fuse when the electric power ceased to function. She said the blast occured while she was inserting the fuse, although this was not shown to have had any connection with the explosion.

A neighbor—Mrs. Eva Dieringer—reported that Mrs. Baden had told her she had complained to the Equitable Gas Company of leaks last Friday and that an inspector had visited the house and said the gas lines were in good order.

4 TARIFF BOARD MEMBERS O. K.'D

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—In sharp contrast to the deadlock between the White House and the Senate over the new Federal Power Commission, the Senate this afternoon co-operated nicely with President Hoover by promptly confirming four members of the U. S. Tariff Commission without even the semblance of a fight.

Chairman Henry P. Fletcher, of Pennsyvlania; Thomas W. Page, of Virginia; John Lee Coulter, of North Dakota, and Alfred P. Dennis, of Maryland, were confirmed without a single record roll call. Their confirmation will enable the commission to organize, since they constitute a quorum.

ACTION SURPRISES

The Senate's prompt approval rather surprised administration leaders who had expected a bitter fight against all six of the new tariff commissioners as an after-

U. S. Neutrality Prolonged War, Pershing Holds

By JOHN J. PERSHING,
Commander-in-chief, American Expeditionary Forces.

CHAPTER I.

The first chapter of "My Experiences in the World War," by Gen. Pershing, is presented herewith. Succeeding chapters will be published daily and Sunday, exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

On May 3, 1917, four weeks after the United States had declared war on Germany, I received the following telegram from my father-in-law, the late Senator F. E. Warren, in Washington:

"Wire me today whether and how much you speak, read and write French."

At this time I was stationed at Fort Sam Houston, which adjoins San Antonio, Tex., and was in command of the Southern Department with the rank of major general. Naturally, Senator Warren's telegram suggested that I was to be assigned to some duty in France, but as no intimation had been given out regarding the extent of our active participation in the war the message was somewhat puzzling. However, I telegraphed the following reply:

"Spent several months in France, 1908, studying language. Spoke quite fluently; could read and write very well at that time. Can easily reacquire satisfactory working knowledge."

Gen. Pershing.

My reply, to be sure, was rather optimistic, yet it was comparatively accurate and perhaps was justified by the possibilities to be inferred from Senator Warren's telegram. A few days later I received from him the following letter:

"Dear Jack:

"This is what happened: Last night, about 10 o'clock, the Secretary of War rang me up and wanted to know if I would call in and see him this morning, and I responded that I would if I could reach him at 9 o'clock. This is the first time he has ever asked me to call for a consultation.

"When I reached him, he said, in the most distant and careless way: 'Oh, by the way, before I discuss the matter about which I asked you to call—do you happen to know whether Pershing speaks French?' (This is the first time your name was ever mentioned between the Secretary of War and me, direct.)

"I said I was not certain about that; that I knew he was a linguist along the lines of Spanish, and, to some extent, Japanese, and all of the Philippine dialects; (a pardonable exaggeration by one's father-in-law)—that perhaps my wife might know, as she speaks French a little and reads it readily.

"He said, 'Well, it is of no special consequence, only I happened to think of it at this moment.' I replied, 'Well, I'll ask my wife about it today and see whether she knows, and will let you know.' He then said, 'If you don't mind, do so.'

"And then he proceeded to discuss quite fully some appropriation matters on which I intended to go to work upon my arrival at the Capitol.

"I hope you will wire me promptly upon receipt of my telegram, so that I may tell the Secretary 'what my wife said about it (?).'

"Affectionately,
"F. E. WARREN."

Secret Message From Gen. Scott

Pershing Told He Would Lead Small Force Formed for First Service in France.

Shortly after the receipt of the private wire and before the above letter reached me, a telegram dated May 2 came from Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff, containing the opening words, "For your eye alone," followed by a message in code:

"Under plans under consideration is one which will require among other troops, four infantry regiments and one artillery regiment from your department for service in France. If plans are carried out you will be in command. You will be in command of the entire force. Wire me at once designation of the regiments selected by you and their present stations."

I construed this message to mean that these troops were to form a division, which, together with such other troops as might be sent over at once, would be under my command.

Within a day or so after the receipt of Scott's telegram it was intimated to Col. M. H. Barnum, my chief of staff, that we might be called upon for a recommendation, and after consultation with him I selected the 16th, 18th, 26th and 28th Regiments of Infantry

WIDOW FLIER LOST AT SEA, HOPE FADES

Mrs. Hart, Lieut. MacLaren Unreported Since Bermuda Takeoff; Ships in Search

HORTA, Island of Fayal, Azores, Jan. 12.—(AP.)—The storm-swept Atlantic was believed today to have claimed the lives of two more trans-oceanic fliers.

Hope for the safety of Mrs. Beryl Hart, 27-year-old widow, and Lieut. William S. MacLaren, who left Hamilton, Bermuda, Saturday for Horta in their monoplane Tradewind, dimmed fast with the passing hours.

The aviators, with a "pay load" which they hoped to take to Paris, expected to negotiate the 2,000 miles in about 21 hours. This would have put them here at 8:15 a. m., eastern standard time, Sunday.

NO TRACE FOUND

They have not been seen or heard of since the take-off. They carried no radio.

The 300 gallons of gasoline which their plane carried was believed to have been sufficient to keep them up until 6 p. m. yesterday. In this time they might have reached the western European or Moroccan coast, but in view of a northeast gale, poor visibility and other unfavorable weather conditions, this was considered improbable.

If forced down at sea the plane probably would not have floated for more than a few minutes. Although it was equipped for a sea landing, the giant waves seen

REED TO DELAY POSTAL CHOICE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP.)—Possibility of another month's delay in the selection of a postmaster for Pittsburgh was expressed today by Senator Reed.

Returning from a week-end visit to Pittsburgh, he said he was no closer to a decision on filling the vacancy than before going to his home city.

He said:

"It may be three or four weeks more before I make a recommendation for the post."

Reed observed he would pursue a "better be slow and be sure" policy in making the appointment and asserted he wanted to be certain the man named had the "confidence" of every one concerned. He said he had discussed the postmastership with leaders of the official, political and business life of the community during his stay in Pittsburgh.

Mussolini Does Things and Then Predicts Them

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

We're afraid everything's going to be all right.

We read it in Mussolini's letter. And he didn't hide it in the postscript.

When Benito says everything is going to be bright you might as well get out your smoked glasses.

That's no prediction for Mussolini. His record shows he does a thing first. And predicts it afterward.

And we don't claim this country would be better off with a dictator.

We have too many of those things now.

We would be better off with

President vs. Public

WHETHER the people or the power trust shall control the new Federal Power Commission is the real and fundamental issue now joined between the Senate and the President.

This is too grave an issue for the people to be blinded by technicalities of procedure.

In the light of the facts no power can prevent the people from seeing the issue clearly.

Once they are in possession of the facts not even the power of the presidency can dissuade the people from following where the facts lead.

Here are the facts:

By a vote of 44 to 37 the Senate requested the President to return for reconsideration the nominations of the chairman and two other members of the new power commission.

This request was prompted by the action of these three commissioners in summarily removing the chief auditor and the solicitor of the old commission who have done their best to prevent the power trust from stealing valuable properties belonging to the public.

IN MAKING this request the Senate contends that it acted in accord with Senate rule No. 38. Under this rule no nomination is finally confirmed or rejected until two days after the Senate has voted upon it.

This rule also provides that "if a notification of the confirmation or rejection shall have been sent to the President before the expiration of the time within which a motion to reconsider may be made, the motion to reconsider shall be accompanied by a motion to request the President to return such nomination to the Senate."

The nomination of these three commissioners having been returned to the President before the time limit fixed by this rule had expired, the Senate was within its rights in requesting the return of the nominations.

But the President not only refuses to accede to the request of the Senate but challenged the right of the Senate to reconsider the nominations and sustains the action of the commissioners in removing these two faithful employes.

"By their fruits ye shall know them." The representatives of the people in the Senate are trying to prevent the power trust from controlling the Federal Power Commission.

THE representatives of the people in the Senate are trying to prevent the tools of the power trust on the commission from punishing Chief King and Solicitor Russell for doing their best to prevent the power trust from stealing the properties that belong to the people.

But the representative of the people in the presidency lines up against the Senate and the faithful public servants the Senate is trying to protect for doing their duty, and goes to the support of the power trust and the three members of the new power commission that did exactly what the power trust wanted them to do when they dismissed King and Russell.

The Hearst newspapers in calling upon the Senate to reconsider the nominations of Chairman Smith and Commissioners Garsaud and Draper said:

"As for Mr. Hoover himself, he is apparently acting not as the president of the United States but as president of the power trust."

By action that speaks louder than words Mr. Hoover now shows that the Hearst newspapers were right in their conclusion.

Thus in the eternal struggle between justice and privilege, of which the conflict between the Senate and the President is the latest engagement, you see the Senate championing the cause of the public and the President joining forces with the power trust.

So that if Mr. Hoover is not president of the power trust now he probably will be after 1932.

Ex-Congressman Ill, Poverty-Stricken

IOWA CITY, Jan. 12.—(AP.)—Robert Cousins, "silver tongued" orator in Congress a generation ago, now lies broken in health and poverty-stricken in the University of Iowa Hospital.

Cousins, 72, served in the House of Representatives from an Iowa district for four terms and tingled the world with his plea for an appropriation for relatives of the men killed in the sinking of the battleship Maine.

Execution Reports Start Indian Riots

LONDON, Jan. 12.—(INS.)—Incensed over the report that four Indian Nationalists were executed by authorities for their part in recent disorders at Sholapur, Indian Congressionalists commenced rioting in the southern sections of Bombay today and produced a tense situation.

Exchange Telegraph dispatches from Bombay reported that the Nationalists stoned street cars and taxis, clashing with strong police detachments. Using batons, the police swung into the rioters in an effort to disperse them.

2,000 CHAIN VICTIM, FIRE SCHOOL

Scene of Crime Made Pyre For Missouri Lynching As Troops Await Call

MARYVILLE, Mo., Jan. 12.—(AP.)—Chained to the roof of the Garrett rural school in which he was alleged to have attacked and slain Miss Velma Colter, 19-year-old teacher, Raymond Gunn, Negro, was burned to death by a mob which made a funeral pyre of the building today.

Gunn was marched into the schoolhouse and to the spot where the bruised body of the young teacher was discovered. Those of the throng about him who were closest said the Negro confessed his guilt.

He was then taken to the roof of the building. He was placed across the ridge-pole. Holes were chopped in the roof and gasoline poured over the floors and on the walls. A member of the mob applied a match.

WAVES TO CROWD

Face down across the ridge-pole, Gunn pushed himself up and waved at the crowd, which contained hundreds of women. Then he sank against the roof.

One long, piercing shriek arose above the crackling of the flames as they played about his head.

The crowd, orderly throughout, stood about the four corners where the school was located, until the white, one-room frame building was reduced to ashes.

Gunn was calm throughout. Those close to him said he was

FLAMES ROUT 3 FAMILIES

Three families were forced to the street today when fire threatened to destroy two adjoining frame houses at 1112 and 1116 High street, North Side.

The flames started in the kitchen of the home of Mrs. Mary Hunkele, 1112 High street, where articles of clothing were fired, police said, by a gas range. Mrs. Hunkele, seeing flames issuing from the kitchen, seized her granddaughter, Colletta, 12, and fled from the house.

Meanwhile, the fire worked through the partition to the adjoining house, occupied on the second floor by Mrs. Marie Kempler and her young son, Walter, and on the first floor by Mrs. Lewasckewecz and her children, Rose, 5, and Vincent, Jr., 4. Carrying her child, Mrs. Kempler rushed to the street and sounded an alarm.

Firemen battled the flames for nearly an hour, and succeeded in confining the blaze to Mrs. Hunkele's home. The adjoining house was damaged mostly by smoke and water.

Sousa Under Knife For Wreck Injury

BALTIMORE, Jan. 12.—(Unicersal.)—John Philip Sousa will undergo an operation at Johns Hopkins Hospital today for an injury to his left shoulder, suffered several years ago in a train wreck. The operation will be performed by Dr. Jean Lewis, chief of the Johns Hopkins surgical staff.

5-Inch Snowfall Misses Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh today had escaped a snowfall which covered the state generally. The State Highway Department announced that more men—1,408—were at work cleaning up the roads today than at any other time this season. A maximum of five inches of snowfall was reported.

Prince Arrives to Visit Astor Heiress, Fiancee

NEW YORK Jan. 12.—(Universal)—Prince Alexis Mdivani, of Georgia (Southern Russia), whose engagement to Louise Astor van Alen, great granddaughter of the late Mrs. William Astor, once the imperial lady of American society, was announced Saturday, will arrive in New York from Paris tomorrow.

After a few days in New York he will proceed to Palm Beach, where he will visit his future bride and her mother, Mrs. James Laurens van Alen.

At Palm Beach the plans for the forthcoming wedding will be completed. Present arrangements call for nuptials in Newport around Easter time.

Young Mdivani, whose older brothers both wed cinema stars—Pola Negri and Mae Murray—first met his bride-to-be through her brothers, "Jimmie," and William L. van Alen, with whom he went to school in England.

math of the impasse between the White House and the Senate over the new Federal Power Commission. The Senate, however, ignored the power fight in disposing of Fletcher, there being but one brief reference to the Senate's effort to oust three power commissioners.

This came when Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, deploring the tendency to "govern by commissions," insisted that the President should name experts to all commissions. Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Connecticut, asked whether Borah had voted to reconsider the confirmation of Chairman George Otis Smith of the power commission "because he is or is not an expert." Borah retorted:

"I certainly did not vote against him because he is an expert."

IMPASSE

The Power Commission controversy was in an impasse. The Senate had the names of Chairman Smith, Claude L. Draper and Marcel Garsaud recorded on its executive calendar just as though they never had been confirmed.

So far as the Senate is concerned, the commissioners are not holding office legally, although they will continue to serve at the President's direction.

The President's defiance of the Senate on the power commission issue and his rebuke for its alleged encroachment on the President's powers," served only to antagonize that body.

Meanwhile the date of adjournment moves closer, with none of the necessary appropriation bills enacted.

Postage Stamps At 3 Cents Urged To Aid Needy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—(AP.)—An opportunity for letter writers to pay 3 cents for a 2-cent stamp, the added penny to go for drought relief, was proposed today by Representative Ackerman, of New Jersey.

The Republican prepared to introduce a resolution calling upon the Postoffice Department to overprint several billion 2-cent stamps with the words "drought relief," and to turn over the added postage to relief organizations.

He estimated that should 25 per cent of the individuals and firms using 2-cent stamps purchase the relief issue, $5,000,000 would be realized in 10 weeks.

TROLLEY WORK TIES TRAFFIC

Street car traffic in the North Side was temporarily paralyzed this morning while workmen were installing a new switch at Sandusky and East Ohio streets, as work started on the new $38,000 Sandusky street improvement project of the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

Squads of police from North Side Station were sent to relieve the congested area. Rerouted southbound Sandusky street cars are running along Federal street and the Sixth Street Bridge. Sandusky street is open to northbound traffic.

PITTSBURGHERS ON CRUISE

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—Dr. and Mrs. Willard Flint, Mrs. Ida Friedman, Mr. and Mrs. Clark N. Kefover, Mrs. Edward McCrady, Miss Elizabeth McCrady, Marshall L. McCune and Miss Mary Alice Sample, of Pittsburgh, sailed on the steamship Franconia on a world cruise during which more than 25 countries will be visited.

These travelers will be joined at Monaco, on January 22, and at Naples, on January 25, by some 50 more world tourists from both the United States and Europe.

The Pittsburghers' itinerary will include Alexandria, Bombay, Shanghai, Nagasaki, Manila, Honolulu and Havana. They will arrive back in New York on May 28.

Sailing in the Steamship Carmania for Nassau and Havana are: Dr. Pauline C. Marks, Mrs. Ray S. Marks and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Harlow of Pittsburgh.

Army Air Contracts Total $1,420,000

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—(INS.)—Contracts for new Army Air Corps equipment involving an expenditure of $1,420,006.72 were approved by the War Department today.

The work was assigned to different concerns, the largest being $641,883 to the Pratt-Whitney Aircraft Company, Hartford Conn., for 112 engines, and $567,137 to the Douglas Aircraft Company, of Santa Monica, Cal., for 30 observation planes.

NYE WILL ASK DAVIS TO GO ON STAND

Senator and Vauclain Face Quiz When Committee Holds Session Friday

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS
Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—Senator James J. Davis, of Pittsburgh, with some dozen other Pennsylvania witnesses, including Samuel Vauclain, of Philadelphia, will be requested to appear before the Senate Campaign Funds Investigating Committee next Friday, Chairman Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, announced this afternoon.

In making the announcement, Chairman Nye said the committee is prepared to wind up its inquiry into the Pennsylvania primary and general election at that time with a view to [illegible] a report next week.

INVITATION" TO DAVIS

Subpoenas will be issued to Mr Vauclain, president of the state-wide committee, and five other Pennsylvania witnesses, except Senator Davis, who will be merely invited to testify, it was stated.

Chairman Nye withheld temporarily the list of the other witnesses, stating that their names will be made public at the time subpoenas are issued probably tomorrow or late today.

Senator Davis, whose right to a seat is under attack, had announced previously that he would be willing to appear before the committee subject to its call.

REITERATES STATEMENT

The North Dakota Senator today reiterated his recent statement in which he served notice of his intention to offer a resolution to declare Davis' seat vacant, provided no other member of the committee initiated the same action.

The hearings Friday are expected to develop the full expenditures made in behalf of Davis and the remainder of the Pennsylvania ticket as found by committee investigators. While the total involved has been placed at approximately $1,200,000, the sum is yet to be broken down into county units.

Senator Davis today hinted at some hidden motive in the "insistent demand" being put forward, as he said, to unseat him.

Declaring that he was "perplexed" by Senator Nye's efforts, he asserted that "his life, both private and public, was an open book containing no blots of dishonor or chicanery." Denying huge expenditures, Davis said:

"On the contrary, the hearings proved facts commonly ackowledged in and out of Pennsylvania, namely that the personal popularity of Jim Davis built largely on his integrity and humaniarian achievements assured his nomination and consequent election to the United States Senate without the need of a large campaign fund.

"In view of these facts, I must admit that I am perplexed by Senator Nye's insistent demand to unseat me in the Senate."

Panhandle Traffic Delayed by Wreck

JURY IN HOME OF SLAIN GIRL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—(INS.)—The coroner's jury today visited the old-fashioned house that sits alone near the district jail where Miss Beulah Limerick, 19, was mysteriously murdered, December 31.

The jurors went there to make a mental picture of the house as a background for the conflicting evidence they have received.

They were told by detectives that an exploded cartridge, found in an empty coffee cup in the kitchen adjoining Miss Limerick's bedroom was not there when they searched the house immediately after the killing became known.

Patrolman Robert F. Langdon, suspended, is held along with the girl's brother, Vernon Limerick; Richard Reed, a boarder at the home, and William E. Paddy, who escorted the girl to a dance the night preceding her killing.

Wreckage Clue To Fate of Fliers

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Jan. 12.—(AP.)—A bit of wood to which was attached a remnant of blue painted fabric, brought here late yesterday, was believed definitely to have solved the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Pilot Robin Renahan and two companions October 28.

Pilot Anscel Eckmann and his mechanic, Frank Wadman, identified the find as a part of the Renehan plane, and said it indicated conclusively the machine crashed within a few minutes' flight from the scene.

2 W. Va. Firms Taxed $401,507 Too Much

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Over-assessment of taxes amounting to $212,951 against the Whitaker-Glossner Company, of Wheeling, W. Va., in 1919, was reported to the Joint Congressional Tax Committee today by the Treasury Department. The committee was also advised of an over-assessment of $181,556 against the Wheeling Steel and Iron Company in 1918 and 1919.

Teacher on Trial In Beating Charge

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 12.—In an attempt to break a deadlock on the question whether Miss Pauline Rose, teacher in the Dogtown School, near Smithfield, is guilty of inflicting cruel and unusual punishment on a pupil, a new jury was drawn today at Smithfield. A jury that deadlocked on the case Saturday was dismissed.

Cleveland May Send Bid to Democrats

CLEVELAND, Jan. 12.—(AP.)—Cleveland's City Council will be asked next Monday to issue an official invitation to the Democratic National Committee to hold the party's 1932 convention in this city, Councilman P. W. Walz said today he will make the request.

Cleveland's last national political convention was the Republican in 1924 when Calvin Coolidge was nominated for the presidency and Charles G. Dowes was named for Vice President.

WHITE BECOMES OHIO GOVERNOR

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 12.—(AP.)—George White now is governor of Ohio. The reins of the state government passed from the hands of eRpublicans to Democrats immediately after noon today when Myers Y. Cooper stepped aside and Mr. White assumed the duties of Ohio's chief executive.

Six bills proposing repeal of statutory prohibition in Ohio were introduced in the State Senate today. Resolutions proposing repeal of constitutional prohibition were introduced last week in both branches.

The repeal bills were introduced by Senators Joseph N. Ackerman, of Cleveland, and William H. Herner, of Huron County. Ackerman had introduced the constitutional amendment providing for repeal last week.

Two of the Ackerman bills and the two Herner bills are virtually identical, providing for repeal of the Crabbe prohibition law and the Miller enforcement code. The other Ackerman bill would repeal the Dow-Aikin tax law, which imposes $1,000 tax on property where intoxicating liquors are sold.

SHOWDOWN ON DROUGHT BILL DUE

House Committee Votes Out Special Rule to Send Measure to Conference

By WILLIAM S. NEAL,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—A showdown in the House tomorrow on the drought relief bill providing $45,000,000 as loans to destitute farmers for seed and feed, deadlocked for week, was assured today when the House Rules Committee voted out a special rule to send it to conference with the Senate.

The rule provides for disagreement with the Senate amendment which added $15,000,000 to provide food for farmers in drought areas, but a vote can be forced on this proposal by a motion to instruct House conferees to agree to the Senate position.

Representative La Guardia (Rep.), of New York, who held up the bill on the demand that any food appropriation be divided equally between the unemployed in the cities and needy farmers, lost his fight for a vote on this proposal. Under the committee's procedure, it is believed that La Guardia's plan would be ruled out on a point of order.

The decision of House leaders to break the deadlock came as the Red Cross prepared to appeal to the public for $10,000,000 to aid sufferers from the drought.

The Red Cross appeal was approved by Mr. Hoover after Chairman John Barton Payne had informed him the present national disaster fund would be inadequate.

The Red Cross has already eaten deeply into a $5,000,000 fund with which it expected to relieve suffering in more than 20 states blighted in the nation's greatest drought last summer.

LYNCHERS BURN GIRL'S SLAYERS

not injured during the march to the school, although his clothing was stripped to his waist.

At least 2,000 persons stood around the small school building.

The Negro, an ex-convict, who had served a prison term for an attack on another girl a few years ago, was seized from sheriff's officers at the entrance to the Courthouse here this morning as he was being brought from the county jail for arraignment on a charge of slaying Miss Colter.

No attempt was made to stop the lynchme, and the mob met little resistance in taking the Negro from officers.

A detachment of Battery C, 128th Field Artillery, Missouri National Guard unit, had been ordered mobilized early today to cope with possible mob action. The guardsmen were reported to have been gathered at their armory at the time Gunn was seized by the mob. It was understood they were waiting for an official request from Sheriff Harve Englund for assistance. Early reports erroneously stated that the guardsmen were on duty about the courthouse when Gunn was taken.

The road leading to the pyre which once was Miss Colter's school room was thronged with automobiles and pedestrians throughout the morning.

Those close to the Negro as he was dragged along his three-mile death march said Gunn told them another Negro, "Shike" Smith, was present when Miss Colter was killed.

Smith was a hunting and trapping companion of Gunn.

As spectators returned from the scene of violence they said members of the mob made no attempt to conceal their identity.

CONGRESS VOTE DROPS MILLIONS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—(AP.)—Thirteen million fewer votes were cast for House members in the last election than in 1928.

William Tyler Page, house clerk, said 24,776,838 votes cast compared with over 38,000,000 in 1928.

There were 13,070,980 votes cast for Republican candidates; 11,018,643 for Democratic candidates; 277,340 for Farm Labor; 238,787 for Socialists; 170,851 for all others.

While but a third of the Senate seats were to be filled for long terms, the Democratic candidates polled 6,852,134; Republicans 5,783,609; Farm Labor 181,827; Socialists 37,132; all others 155,549, making a total of 13,010,252.

Shot Fired at Dog Leads to Man's Death

WELCH, W. Va., Jan. 12—(AP.)—A gun battle resulting from a shot fired at a dog ended in the death of Lee Whitaker, 45, on Whitaker's Ridge, an isolated section just across the Virginia-West Virginia state line.

Three men, Robert Whitaker, Orat Beavers and Boyd Crockett, were arrested in the slaying and placed in the Tazewell County Jail.

Chicago 'Bomb King' Wounded by Gunmen

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—(AP.)—The career of the "bomb king" of Chicago—Jake Bernstein, one of the original 28 "public enemies"—has ended, temporarily at least. He was shot in eight places, bullets pierced his head and body. Two assailants fired the shots after he stepped from the doorway of his brother-in-law's home in "Little Italy."

State Rests Case At Ewald Trial

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP.)—The state rested its case today in the trial of former Magistrate and Mrs. George F. Ewald on office buying charges after a week of testimony by prosecution witnesses. Frank O'Neil, court attendant who has testified Ewald had told him last April of having paid $10,000 to Martin J. Healy, Democratic district leader, and $2,000 to Dr. Francis M. Scharp, member of the Steuben Society, for their influence in obtaining his appointment was cross-examined today.

Dolly Gann to Head Line At Bachelors Cotillion

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—(AP.)—Old tradition and [illegible] beauty will see in prompt measure in the capital tonight with revival of the annual Bachelors Cotillion, which had its inception before the Civil War.

Stately Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of the Vice President, will head the receiving line and vivacious Miss Mary Dawes, niece of the ambassador to London, daughter of Henry Dawes former comptroller, will lead the dancing couple in the cotillion figures with Brig. Gen. William E. Horton as her partner.

Years ago, when this same Bachelors Cotillion was danced in Washington, the popular belle received many favors, the waltz [illegible] were the days when figures, intricate indeed, were caused by the 10 "picked" couples, while all those who had not shone so brilliantly retired to the wall to watch.

But during the World War, when cotillions were adjourned, and jazz swept over the land, figures were forgotten. The girls in shimmering ball gowns and the men in black will form simpler patterns tonight. It is an equal show for the half dancing, half watching all sharing alike.

Not the least but men have kept the secret of Gen. Horton, president of the Cotillion, today, both with [illegible] the cotillion is still both fine [illegible]. There is but one married man among the officers.

Coolidge Urges Steps To Abolish City Slums

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 12.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The abolition of city slums through public and private effort would be social service of the first order. Public discussion concerning them seldom appears because building and tenement laws with the high rates of wages have greatly modified these sections. But they still exist. The present seems a time when state and local governments might join with philanhtropic persons in rebuilding these areas.

Calvin Coolidge

Environment is a powerful factor in human development. But all that is necessary cannot be contributed by housing. Many country houses would make slums if concentrated in a large city. But with no crowding and abundant light, air and water, the character of houses in the country is not so important.

It will take more than a combination of such improvements to abolish the slums. The problem is also personal. Changing the outer garments will not be enough. Elaborate mansions often shelter bad people while good people live in poverty. We must reach deeper and change the soul. The mental and moral atmosphere must be renovated. Fine houses will be in vain unless those who occupy them come under the influence of education and religion.

URGES DEBT CUT TO HALT SLUMP

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP.)—The reduction of inter-Allied debts to stimulate the recovery of business is advocated by Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of Chase National Bank, the world's largest.

In his annual report to stockholders today he writes:

"The most serious of the adverse factors affecting business is the inability of foreign countries to obtain dollars in amount sufficient both to make interest and amortization payments on their debts to us and to buy our exports in adequate volume."

He advises a moderate decrease in wages. He said:

"It is not true that high wages make prosperity. Instead, prosperity makes high wages. When wages are higher than the market situation justifies, employment and the buying power of labor fall off."

Conditions at the end of 1931 will be a great deal better than they were at the end of 1930, in the opinion of Mr. Wiggin.

GARDNER WILLS $200,000

William Gardner, vice president of the United Engineering and Foundry Company, in his will disposing of an estate valued at upwards of $200,000 left the family home at 2770 Beechwood boulevard to the widow and created a trust fund for the disposal of the balance.

He widow receives one-half the income and the other half is equally divided among two sons and a daughter and five children of a deceased daughter. The latters are given an annuity. The widow and the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company are named executors.

Betsy Ross' Wedding Memorial Unveiled

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 12.—(AP.)—The second of Betsy Ross' three marriages was commemorated at ceremonies arranged by the Flag House Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution. A two-year-old great-great-great-great-grandnephew of the maker of the first American flag unveiled a tablet in her memory in Old Swedes Church. The tablet was inscribed:

"To the glory of God in memory of Betsy Ross, widow of John Ross, maker of the first American flag, married in this church to Capt. Joseph Ashbourn, June 15, 1777."

German Star Gazers See Trouble for U. S.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—(INS.)—German astrologers, basing conclusions on scientific studies of astral bodies, predicted trouble for various countries including the United States for the first half of 1931. They stated that the last half, according to indications, should bring happier developments.

Glassport Keeps Soup Kitchen Open

The soup kitchen installed in the Glassport Police Station will be kept open 24 hours a day, it was announced by Chief of Police M. J. Kobak today. Soup bread and coffee will be furnished to every one who applies for food, the police official said. Paddy King, a borough citizen, is the chef.

MOTHER FIGHTS TO REGAIN BABY

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Rose Lynch has filed habeas corpus proceedings here for return of her baby she said she lent to friends last April.

She states the baby, 16-months-old Josephine Patricia, was placed in care of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Mays, of Lake Worth, Fla., and Muskegon, Mich., and they signed a written agreement to return the infant after a trip to the North. When they returned last fall, the petition continues, they failed to give up the child and Mrs. Lynch has been trying to recover possession.

Mrs. Lynch says:

"They have asked me several times to let them adopt Josephine Patricia, but that is out of the question."

AUTO MISHAPS KILL 2 HERE

Two persons were dead and seven others injured as a result of automobile accidents in the Pittsburgh district yesterday.

William E. Hall, 6 of 204 West Stockton avenue, was fatally injured when struck by an automobile at Federal street and River avenue yesterday. He died an hour later in the Allegheny General Hospital. Police arrested Luke Collins of 241 Allegheny avenue, Emsworth, alleged driver of the car.

D. Henry Elser, 49, a machinist of 14 Grape street, Knoxville died yesterday in Mercy Hospital from a broken neck and internal injuries suffered when the automobile in which he was a passenger skidded and crashed against a pole at Second avenue and the Armstrong tubes a short time before. Jacob Boise, of 504 Hart avenue, driver of the machine, suffered several fractured ribs, it was reported.

Wants to Bar Apple Sellers As 'Employed'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP.)—A protest against counting the apple sellers as employed persons in the unemployment census now being taken by the Census Bureau was filed with Director Steuart by Representative LaGuardia (Rep.), New York.

He said that such a classification would be manifestly misleading" and added that the "apple situation is one that cannot continue permanently."

The New Yorker wrote:

"These men do not expect to stand on the corner selling apples for the rest of their lives. That is not their calling. They want work."

MT. LAREN'S WIFE HERE

Mrs. William MacLaren, wife of the former Navy flier apparently lost in his attempted trans-Atlantic flight with Mrs. Beryl Hart, today was at the home of her mother, Mrs. W. H. Nimick, Fifth and Highland avenues.

She previously had stated she knew nothing of the flight and had not seen her husband for more than a year. Mrs. MacLaren, who before her marriage was Miss Elizabeth Nimick, and MacLaren were married shortly after the war. The wedding was a brilliant society event.

MacLaren formerly was treasurer of a drug manufacturing company here.

MOTHER AIDING LINGLE SUSPECT

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—(INS.)—While state prosecutors today were completing their grand jury presentation of evidence against Leo V. Brothers, held as the slayer of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, the suspect's mother, Mrs. Cordell Jessen of St. Louis, was directing a spirited fight to establish her son's innocence.

Members of the state's attorney's staff said they would complete the presentation of evidence against Brothers today and predicted that the indictment would be returned at once by the grand jury.

Meanwhile Brothers, a reputed gunman and labor organizer of St. Louis, was being closely guarded by state's attorney's men at a secret hideout. According to prosecutors, Brothers has been identified by at least nine witnesses as the lone gunman who shot and killed the Chicago Tribune reporter last June 9 as he was threading his way through a pedestrian subway crowd at Randolph street.

WIFE VANISHES, 3 MEN SOUGHT

Peter Susan, of 817 Manle street, McKeesport, who came to Pittsburgh last night with his wife, Mary, 22, to attend a Bible conference, today had appealed to Pittsburgh police and detectives to help him find his wife, who, he said, disappeared with three men, one of whom stopped the couple in Penn avenue at Eleventh street.

Susan told police at the Penn avenue station he and his wife noticed three men following them along Grant street shortly before midnight. The men followed them from Fifth avenue and Grant street to the Pennsylvania station, then to Penn avenue and Eleventh street.

The woman's disappearance was reported to police, and Susan with Patrolmen Joseph Lynch and Hugh Haggerty, searched the district in an automobile. Later the description of Mrs. Susan was sent out over the police teletype system.

STEEG ADVISES UNITY WITH U. S.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—(AP.)—Theodore Steeg, premier of France, in an interview with the Associated Press today, urged economic and intellectual co-operation between France and the United States as a means of establishing and maintaining the peace and happiness of the world.

Tomorrow he goes before Parliament, perhaps to begin a battle which will determine just how long he will remain at the helm of the French ship of state, but in this first interview since he assumed office, this statesman whom Lord Balfour during the World War regarded as the most lucid mind in France was apparently as calm and carefree as though, as in his earlier days, he were a professor expounding philosophy in a schoolroom.

PRIEST'S ALARM BETRAYS THIEF

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 11.—(AP.)—The Rev. Emil Dock not only is a priest but a genius as well.

The poor box of his church, St. Francis Xavier, has been robbed several times. The priest rigged up a contrivance to prevent future losses. The contraption got its first test yesterday and it worked.

The thief tried to open the box. His efforts released a spring which sent the money jingling into an iron receptacle in the cellar of the church. The contact of the coins with the bottom of the cellar receptacle set off a burglar alarm in the rectory. The thief was caught hiding behind the altar.

STATES INVITED TO WORLD FAIR

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—(AP.)—Invitations to participate in the 1933 Chicago world's fair were before American state legislatures today. They were urged to present not only the resources of each state and their present development, but the possibilities of further progress opening through the increasing application of scientific principles to industrial and social progress.

A single states building possible, surrounding a central unit operated by the federal government, will take the place in 1933 of the many individual state buildings of other world's fairs.

This is planned so each state can devote its appropriation to its exhibit rather than expend money for a temporary structure.

DEATH OF MAN LAID TO FALL

County detectives and deputy coroners today were inclined to the theory that George N. Graham, 50, insurance salesman, of 1706 Marquis street, who died in Mercy Hospital Saturday night, had been fatally injured by a fall while hurrying to catch a train.

Graham was found unconscious beside the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at Rosslyn station Thursday night with a fractured skull. He died without regaining consciousness. He had left the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Austin, relatives in Rosslyn Farms, after receiving a telephone call. He was found 30 minutes later, according to Detective John W. Geisler, indicating that Graham had run to the station.

Geisler believed Graham may have fallen, striking his head against a rail. No other marks were found on his body.

NEGRO TO MARK FOSTER GRAVE

For the first time since the Civic Club of Allegheny County has conducted memorial services for Stephen Collins Foster, a Negro will place the Civic Club wreath upon the grave of the Pittsburgh composer. J. O. Taylor, gray-haired patriarch, born in Georgia 72 years ago, will perform this service. He has lived in Pittsburgh most of his life and for 35 years has been employed at the Monongahela National Bank.

The memorial services for the famous composer will be held tomorrow, the sixty-seventh anniversary of his death. The wreath will be placed on his grave in Allegheny Cemetery at 4:15 o'clock while members of the Manchester Educational Center's Choral Society sing one of his compositions. Will Rhodes, director of the choral society, will have charge of the music and the speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Carl Wallace Petty, pastor of the First Baptist Church. The cemetery services will be held under the direction of William M. Lloyd.

Tomorrow night services will be held in Carnegie Music Hall under the auspices of the Stephen Collins Foster Memorial Association. The speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Robert MacGowan, pastor of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church. Foster melodies will be played by Dr. Charles Heinroth.

DECLARES VETS WANT CASH NOW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(Universal)—An overwhelming majority of the members of the American Legion and other veterans' organizations favor action at the present session of Congress for immediate cash redemption of the World War veterans' adjusted compensation certificates, Representative Wright Patman (Dem.), of Texas, made known today.

A leader in the fight in Congress to force action before the session ends March 4, Patman revealed he had received petitions from over 30,000 persons, war veterans and citizens who did not serve in the World War, demanding legislation.

Backed by signatures of 110 members of the House to a petition demanding action on scores of bills for cash payment, Patman announced that beginning today he will poll every member of the House Ways and Means Committee to ascertain their views on whether the committee should grant a hearing on the bills.

STRAUS' DEATH MOURNED BY NATION

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 . . .

Mr. Straus

WILL OMIT FLOWERS

ZIONISTS' TRIBUTE

A special resolution was passed at a meeting of the administrative committee of the New York District Region, of which Straus had been honorary president for the past two years. The resolution said:

"With the passing of Nathan Straus American Jewry has lost its dean. He was, too, in the heart of American Jewry. Innumerable philanthropic institutions will mourn him as a noble benefactor and courageous social servant.

"But to Jews of this country and throughout the world the name of Nathan Straus represented a unique quality, a symbol of the highest aspirations and finest achievement of the Jewish race.

"He was the champion of his people who not only sought to preserve what it had attained, but also to stimulate it to new creative efforts. He was the first great Jew of wealth to realize that Zionism is the only solution to the Jewish problem.

"It was in the cause of rebuilding the Jewish national home that he revealed to the depths his greatness of social vision and his self-respecting attitude to the Jewish question.

"The New York Zionist Region, whose honorary president he was for two years, is at once with the Zionists in every land, particularly in Palestine, in mourning the loss of Nathan Straus as one of the contemporary moulders of Jewish destiny."

TRIBUTE BY HOOVER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—President Hoover issued the following statement on the death in New York of Nathan Straus, leader of American Jewry:

"The death of Nathan Straus removes from our national life a venerable figure which will be sadly missed, a Jewish leader whose vision of service transcended all limits of race or creed and a philanthropist whose benefactions, especially in behalf of children, were of permanent value."

Two Women Die Of Home Injuries

Two aged women died in hospitals today from injuries suffered in their homes. They are Mrs. Isabella Brownfield, 85, of 708 North Homewood avenue, and Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, 60, of 1012 Madison avenue.

Mrs. Brownfield died in the Pittsburgh Hospital from pneumonia, caused from a fractured right hip which she suffered in a fall in her home on Tuesday. Mrs. Miller's injuries, suffered December 31 when her bathrobe caught fire from an open grate in her home.

Police Seek Negro In Wife Shooting

Police today were searching for Lucius Burton, a Negro, of 347 Arch street, Clairton, who escaped arrest after he is charged to have shot and seriously wounded his wife, Mrs. Eva Burton, 38, a Negro, during an argument at their home last night. The woman was taken to the McKeesport Hospital suffering from a revolver wound of the right thigh, police said.

Holdup Man Shoots Newspaper Official

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—(AP)—William L. Just, 32, business manager of the Waukegan News-Sun, grappled with one or two would-be robbers and was shot in the right leg last night. The yeggs flashed revolvers on Just's theater party of four persons in the Gold Coast district, but fled when challenged by Just. His father, Frank Just, publishes the newspaper.

Safe Blowers Crack Wheeling Strongbox

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 12.—Yeggs last night blew the safe in the George M. Strook department store in the heart of Wheeling's business district, after binding and gagging William Reedy, 76, night watchman. No money was kept in the safe. Two fur coats were stolen.

Foodless at 85, Ends Life by Blast

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., Jan. 12.—Without food and too proud to ask neighbors for help, John Anderson, 83, Atascadero wood chopper, placed a stick of dynamite on his chest and touched off the fuse. His body was found in the Salinas River bed.

Glenfield Firemen Install Officers

F. W. Schneider was installed as president of the Glenfield Volunteer Fire Department at the opening of the year. Other officers installed included W. E. Gehres, secretary; Harry McComb, treasurer, and A. C. Benvenhoefer, battalion chief.

PERSHING'S own story of the World War

BEGINNING TODAY

$3000.00 IN CASH PRIZES!

EVERY READER IS INVITED TO JOIN THE PERSHING TEST TODAY!

Carefully Read These Simple Rules:

RULE 1—With the beginning of the publication of General Pershing's Own Story of the World War, Monday, Jan. 12, 1931, the daily and Sunday Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph inaugurates a Pershing test in which $3,000.00 in cash prizes will be awarded to readers who submit the correct or most nearly correct answers to a set of ten questions pertaining to dates and episodes chronicled in the Pershing narrative. Contestants will also be asked to submit a letter of not more than 200 words to the question "What is the most important episode chronicled in the Pershing memoirs published in the Sun-Telegraph and why?" This letter will be judged as a part of the Pershing test with the answers to the ten questions. Two test questions will be published from time to time during the publication of the story in the Sun-Telegraph and contestants will be allowed ten days to prepare and submit their answers after the last chapter has been printed. The Pershing story will run approximately ten weeks. The exact date of the time limit for submitting answers will be announced later—contingent upon the closing date of the story.

RULE 2—The Pershing test is open to everyone except employes of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and their families.

RULE 3—A total sum of $3,000.00 in cash will be awarded as prizes—$500.00 to each of six classes or groups as follows:

CLASS NO. 1—Grade School Children.

CLASS NO. 2—High School Pupils.

CLASS NO. 3—College Students.

CLASS NO. 4—School Teachers, Members of the Faculty of Schools and Colleges, Clergymen, and Members of Religious Orders.

CLASS NO. 5—Members of the American Legion and Other Organizations That Include World War Veterans.

CLASS NO. 6—All Other Readers of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Rule 4—The prizes in each class will be awarded as follows:

FIRST PRIZE	$200.00
SECOND PRIZE	100.00
THIRD PRIZE	50.00
FOURTH PRIZE	25.00
FIFTH PRIZE	15.00
SIXTH TO TENTH PRIZES (INC.), $10.00 EACH	50.00
ELEVENTH TO TWENTY-SECOND PRIZES (INC), $5 EACH	60.00
TOTAL	$500.00
132 CASH PRIZES IN ALL, TOTALING	$3,000.00

In case of ties, contestants so tied will be awarded equal prizes.

RULE 5—The answers submitted in the Sun-Telegraph-Pershing test will be examined by a special board of judges, none of whom will be employes of the Sun-Telegraph. The board of judges will make the awards and their judgment will be final. The sets of answers when submitted become the property of the Sun-Telegraph and will not be returned. All sets of answers submitted must be mailed first class postage prepaid and directed to the Pershing Contest Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

RULE 6—You do not have to buy a daily or Sunday Sun-Telegraph to participate in this contest. There is free access to the files of the Sun-Telegraph at the public libraries or at the publication offices of this newspaper.

The first two test questions will appear in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph next Sunday. You will find the answers to these questions in the installments to be printed during the current week.

PERSHING SAYS U. S. DELAY ADDED YEAR TO WAR

FALSE NOTIONS OF NEUTRALITY PROVE COSTLY

and the [illegible] These [illegible] artillery [illegible] necessa[illegible] later [illegible] Division.

I had [illegible] thought [illegible] my being [illegible] preme [illegible] abroad, [illegible] veloped [illegible] friend, [illegible] Bell, [illegible] thought [illegible] certain [illegible] pines, [illegible] in comm[illegible] up [illegible] ence [illegible] change[illegible] matters.

Sixth in Line
Yet Superior Forecasts He Will Direct Army

In one of [illegible] letters [illegible] April, 1917, Gen. Bell spoke of the possibility [illegible] an army [illegible] list of the general officers who might be considered for the supreme command. Discussing the chances for and against each one he predicted, much to my surprise, that all the others, including himself, would be passed over and that I would be selected.

I was a major on the list of major generals, hence could not fully [illegible] Gen. Bell's view, but he was so strongly convinced that he was right that he requested an assignment under my command. The major generals senior to me at the time were in order of rank, Leonard Wood, Gen. Bell, Thomas H. Barry, Hugh L. Scott and Tasker H. Bliss.

From the day of my entrance into West Point up to middle age I had hoped the time would come when I could go back to civil life while still young enough to take up the law or go into business. But successive assignments that offered chances for active field duty and adventure had held me in the Army.

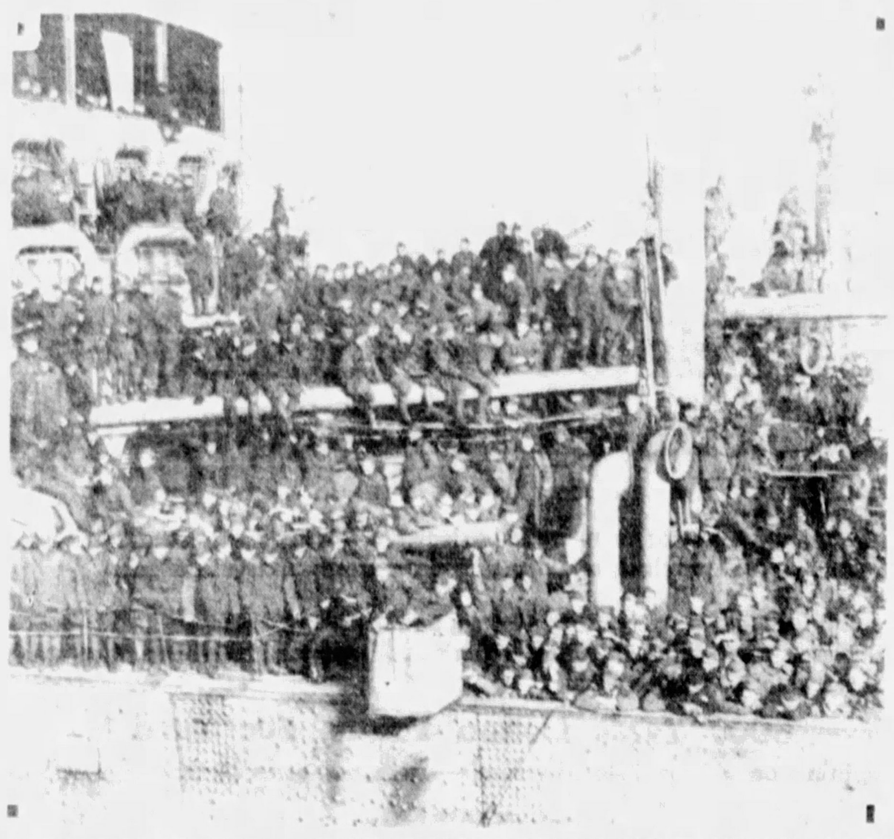
Now that there had come an opportunity for services to the country such as had fallen to the lot of but few men, I considered myself especially fortunate to have remained in the Army. Throughout my career I have never ceased to wonder whether, after all, we are not largely the creatures of destiny.

When the incident occurred at Sarajevo that caused the smoldering embers of hatred and jealousy in Europe to burst into flame, my command, the 8th Infantry Brigade, was stationed along the Mexican border and I was on leave, spending a few weeks with my family in Cheyenne, Wyo.

In France in 1908
Thought of World War Stunned Senses

My wife and I had been in France in 1908 and witnessed

THOSE WHO KNEW HIM AS 'BLACKJACK'



YANKEES ADECK ABOARD ONE OF THE COUNTLESS TROOPSHIPS THAT WENT 'OVER THERE'

the excitement of the French to believe that the army was [illegible] that attitude and were flattered [illegible] the entrance to Austria [illegible] the thought of the glory and [illegible] the national prestige that [illegible] Herzegovina, Servia had long [illegible] would follow success.

[illegible] suspected similar designs against her and the animosity that had grown up between her and Austria, added to the fears and ambitions of the nations likely to be aligned on either side, furnished plenty of inflammable material to start a war. But the thought of a world at war, imminent, perhaps immediate, actually stunned one's senses.

And yet, in reviewing the previous 50 years, one could see that events had distinctly and unmistakably pointed that way. Without entering into a discussion of the more remote causes of the war, in which, perhaps, all European nations that were involved must share a certain responsibility, it is sufficient to say that throughout their history during the preceding 50 years, with its background of age-old racial and religious prejudices, the attitude of United Germany amid the maze of shifting alignments, diplomatic entanglements and conflicting national ambitions had become more aggressive and dominating.

Powerful Army
Germans Believed Military Machine Invincible

The action of Germany following the Sarajevo incident suddenly forced the conclusion upon other peoples that its leaders intended to avail themselves of this opportunity to establish Germany, if possible, as the dominant power of Europe.

As we know, the German militarists believed their people the fear of the Slav as one reason for going to war, and frightened the financial interests by pointing out the danger of losing national prestige and [illegible] if they were [illegible] less [illegible] cheeks.

The German people [illegible] to believe that the army was [illegible] that attitude and were flattered [illegible] the entrance to Austria [illegible] the thought of the glory and [illegible] the national prestige that [illegible] would follow success.

The German military machine itself was without doubt more nearly perfect and powerful than any that had ever before existed. The great general staff had fully considered every condition necessary to military success, and even solemn treaty obligations were not to stand in the way. The hour for Germany to take advantage of her opportunity had arrived. The details of what happened in the beginning are well known and the world has long since fixed the blame where it properly belongs—on the shoulders of the then German government.

Offends Neighbors
Belgium Opposed Passage Of German Forces

The violation of Belgian sovereignty afforded Germany the advantage of invading France from the most favorable quarter, yet it was no justification for her to claim that strategical considerations impelled her to disregard the treaty. If at the time of signing the treaty Germany harbored the secret reservation that under certain circumstances she might ignore it, the deception presents the strongest kind of evidence of her war guilt. Moreover, this overt act served to give notice to all nations, including neutrals, that Germany intended to brook no opposition in her purpose to conquer her ancient enemy once for all.

I cannot escape the conviction that in view of this defiance of neutral rights the United States made a grievous error in not immediately entering a strong protest.

The argument might be that as our government was not a signatory to the treaty its violation was none of our business. But, broadly speaking, [illegible] civilized nations and one of the stronger members had committed an offense against a peaceful neutral neighbor whose only fault was that she stood in the way.

The plea was advanced by the Germans that Belgium could have avoided trouble if she had not opposed the passage of their forces through her territory, but if she failed to resist she would have forfeited the respect of the world, and by opposing she gained universal admiration.

Our Neglect
Not Ready to Support Demands by Force

The invasion of Belgium was in fact an open declaration of Germany's attitude toward all neutral rights. If our people had grasped its meaning they would have at least insisted upon preparation to meet more vigorously the later cumulative offenses of Germany against the law of nations, the most inhumane of which was the sinking of the Lusitania. Here was provocation enough for very positive action by any government alive to its obligations to protect its citizens.

The fact is that the world knew only too well that we had for years neglected to make adequate preparations for defense, and Germany therefore dared to go considerably further than she would have gone if we had been even partially ready to support our demands by force.

After some diplomatic correspondence the question of the use of submarines as it affected us rested until the sinking, without warning, of the Sussex, a channel steamer carrying American passengers, on March 24, 1916. It will be recalled that we then warned Germany that unless she should immediately declare and effect an abandonment of such methods of submarine warfare against passenger and freight carrying vessels there would be no choice for us but to sever diplomatic relations with her. In reply, Germany made a definite promise to sink no more vessels without warning, although she made reservations as to the future.

Remained Idle
Little Done by U. S. To Meet Emergency

Germany was informed that her reply was unsatisfactory, and there the matter was dropped, apparently without our seriously considering the action that we necessarily would be forced to take in the event of her resumption of ruthless methods. Little more than a gesture was made to get ready for such an emergency and practically nothing was done in the way of increasing our military forces or of providing material for their equipment.

It is true that Congress appropriated over $300,000,000 in August, 1916, for naval construction, and some progress was made in beginning the construction of small craft and the establishment of a better administrative organization for the Navy. This same Congress also passed a compromise act for the reorganization of our military forces, but scarcely a move was made to carry it out prior to our actual entrance in the war.

Thus we presented the spectacle of the most powerful people in the world sitting on the sidelines almost idly watching the enactment of the greatest tragedy of all time, in which we might be compelled at any minute to take an important part.

Favored Germany
Germans Governed According to Our Inaction

It is almost inconceivable that there could be such an apparent lack of foresight in administration circles regarding the probable necessity for the expansion of our military forces and so little appreciation of the time and effort that would be required to prepare for effective service.

The inaction on our part played into the hands of Germany, as she knew how long it would take us to put an army into the field, and governed herself accordingly. In other words, the date of resuming indiscriminate submarine warfare, February 1, 1917, was timed with the idea that the greater part of neutral and British shipping could be destroyed before we were ready, should we by any chance enter the war.

Let us suppose that instead of adhering to the erroneous theory that neutrality forbade any move toward preparation we had taken the precaution in the spring of 1916 to organize and equip an army of half a million combatant troops, together with the requisite number of supply troops for such a force. This could have been done merely by increasing the Regular Army and National Guard to war strength.

Missed Advantage
War Could Have Been Ended Much Sooner

It would have given us the equivalent of 40 French, German or average British divisions ready to sail at once for France upon the declaration of war. With such a force to aid the Allies early in 1917, the advantage would have been entirely on their side. Preparation to this extent could have been a concentration of the Regular Army and National Guard on the Mexican border afforded in 1916.

The actual situation at that time on the Western Front was more favorable for the Allies than at any previous time. The strength of the German forces there had been greatly reduced because of the necessity for supporting the Russian front. Although reports were

Pershing Conceives His Memoirs As Valued Service to Country

My primary purpose in writing this story of the American Expeditionary Forces in France is to render what I conceive to be an important service to my country. In that adventure there were many lessons useful to the American people, should they ever again be called to arms, and I felt it a duty to record them as I saw them.

Mr. Wilson

The World War found us absorbed in the pursuits of peace and quite unconscious of possible threat to our security. We would listen to no warnings of danger. We had made small preparation for defense and none for aggression. So when war actually came upon us we had to change the very habits of our lives and minds to meet its realities. The slow processes by which we achieved these changes and applied our latent power to the problems of combat in Europe, despite our will, our numbers and our wealth, I have endeavored to describe. Therein lie the lessons of which I write.

I wish to dedicate this modest work to the men of our ranks who served with me in France and especially to those who gave their lives to the cause for which we fought.

To my comrades of the Allied armies I wish to say that I am not attempting to write a history of the World War or of the epic part they took in it. I write of our own Army and for our own people and I have not consciously magnified or minimized the effort of any army or any people. There is credit for all of us in the final triumph of our united arms. The struggle of the Allies was much longer, their sacrifices very much greater than ours.

Mr. Baker

I am grateful to President Wilson and Secretary Baker for selecting me to command our armies and for the wholehearted and unfailing support they accorded me in France. No commander was ever privileged to lead a finer force; no commander ever derived greater inspiration from the performance of his troops.

PERSHING SAW WAR CLOUDS IN 1908

Visit to France Revealed Tense Situation; Found Germans Well Prepared

filtering in regarding the beginning of the revolution there was little to indicate that Russia was not still a factor to be reckoned with. Actually the Allies had an advantage of something over 20 per cent in numbers, French morale was high, due to their successful defense of Verdun, and the British armies had reached their maximum power.

Under these conditions it is not extravagant to assert that the addition of 500,000 American combat troops at that time would have given the Allies such a preponderance of force that the war could have been brought to a victorious conclusion before the end of that year.

Allies Repulsed

Failure Attributed to Lack of Secrecy

Even without such aid, the confidence of the Allies led them to undertake a general offensive in April. Although it ended in defeat, especially for the French, who were under the command of Gen. Nivelle, the failure can be attributed to a large extent to lack of secrecy in its preparation. A well-planned campaign with the assistance of half a million Americans would have told quite another story.

Thus, through a false notion of neutrality, which had prevented practically all previous preparation, favorable opportunity to assist the Allies was lost, the war was prolonged another year and the losses in human life tremendously increased.

But, from another viewpoint, it is not improbable that if we had been thus prepared our rights would have been respected and we would not have been forced into the war. We shall see as we proceed how great were the difficulties to be overcome because of our inexcusable failure to do what common reason long before our entry into the war plainly indicated should have been done.

The only training any of our forces received, except the ordinary routine, during the year prior to 1917, was given to the troops then in Mexico and to those stationed along the border.

Wanted Draft

Believed Best Method of Raising Army

President Wilson recommended the draft as the best method of raising an army. In discussions in Congress on the subject, many members were in favor of the volunteer system. Even the Speaker of the House, Champ Clark, of Missouri, in a speech on the floor opposing the draft act, compared the conscript to the convict.

With such strong opposition it looked as though the conscription law would fail to pass. Its opponents forgot that during the Civil War the volunteer system had given President Lincoln and his commanders no end of trouble, and that to provide man power the North was finally forced to adopt conscription. Large numbers of shirkers were thus compelled to serve, hence the opprobrium that clung to the word conscript.

It was very important that a repetition of the experience in the Civil War should be avoided. The advocates of a volunteer army also ignored the experience in the World War of the British, who, after a year and a half of effort to recruit their armies under that system, had been obliged to resort to the draft.

Preparation

Stressed the Fact in Letter to Friend

In my opinion it was so vital to our success that while in San Antonio, contrary to my lifelong rule against meddling with legislation, I persuaded the then governor of Texas that conscription was sound in principle, and got him to exert his influence with the Texas delegation in Congress in favor of it. In writing at the time to a friend of mine with reference to this subject, I said:

"We must avoid creating the impression that we are sending a political army to Europe—the day of political armies is past. It would be a whole lot wiser for us to stay at home until we are thoroughly prepared. Universal service is the only principle to follow that will lead to success in this war, and that should be well understood. We are in this thing for keeps, and it is going to demand the utmost exertion and the best of preparation to win. We shall have to select the flower of the young manhood of this country and give them thorough training before we start. The only way we can hope to succeed is by dogged determination and perseverance. . . No half-way measures are going to solve this problem. I am with the President in this matter, heart and soul. I am sincerely and deeply impressed with the necessity of clinging to rational lines in carrying out his policies. The President feels the importance of this situation, and every honest American should stand right behind him and help to the utmost."

Draft Act

Called It a Triumph of Democratic Government

On the afternoon of April 29, while busy at my desk at Fort Sam Houston, word came through the Associated Press that both houses of Congress had passed the draft act, although, as it turned out, amendments adopted by the two houses necessitated a conference, which delayed the passage of the act in its final form nearly three weeks.

A number of newspaper reporters called at once and wanted to know what I thought about it. I said that of course everybody had realized for some time that our actual participation with armed forces could hardly be avoided; that the responsibility that now rested upon the country was tremendous, and added:

"The echo of that vote for conscription will be heard around the globe. It is a triumph of democratic government; a willing step taken by a free people under wise leadership. . . It means that every man will have his role to play."

Tomorrow: Pershing goes to Washington and is made commander-in-chief. He finds lack of war preparation appalling.

WRITING HIS LIFE STORY

GEN. PERSHING TODAY . . . AS HE WROTE OF HIS LIFE'S WORK

CAPT. JOHN J. PERSHING

Pershing early in his military career in the dress uniform of a U. S. Army cavalry captain.

New Duquesne Head Lauds Pershing World War Story

Gen. John J. Pershing is the one person able to give the true military aspect of the World War, declared the Very Rev. Joseph Callahan, new president of Duquesne University, commenting on Pershing's Memoirs, which begin today exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

After reading several chapters of this most important of all World War chronicles, he said:

"[illegible] is no doubt that this is a fine thing."

Father Callahan pointed out the educational value of the Memoirs and lauded the enterprise that makes Pershing's own story so easily available to the general public.

A distinguished writer and Jesuit priest of New York, the Rev. William I. Lonergan, associate editor of America, added his opinion to that of Father Callahan. He said:

"Newspaper readers, perusing memoirs such as Gen. Pershing's, can better understand the necessity of peace and good will among men."

Father Lonergan was in Pittsburgh yesterday after giving an address at the National Retreat Conference held here and in Latrobe.

Another opinion on Gen. Pershing's memoirs from Dr. Henry Rolf Brown, medical officer in charge of the United States Veterans' Hospital at Aspinwall, follows:

"Every ex-service man or woman will be interested in the forthcoming Memoirs of Gen. Pershing, especially those who were members of the A. E. F. They will naturally be curious and anxious to read of those incidents which concern or touch upon his or her individual place in action, which took place in those eventful years. It will revive fading memories, and recall much that may be more or less confused or forgotten, and, as the curtain rises and unfolds, there will be much more understanding of events which are now not so clear.

"Not only will all ex-service people be absorbed in the narrative, but the whole world will be interested to know from the great American commander many things that discreet silence must have protected, but which may years after be given to us. We are looking forward and anticipating with much pleasure the unwinding of the story."

These are three of a series of opinions of prominent educators and leaders on the memoirs of Gen. Pershing, which begin exclusively in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph today.

New 'Discovery' Is Heroine With John Mack Brown In New Talkie

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 12.

One of Alabama's favorite sons, Johnny Mack Brown, will have the masculine lead in the talkie version of "Never the Twain Shall Meet," upon which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is embarking.

Johnny plays the part that Richard Dix had in the silent version, made a number of years ago. Conchita Montenegro, a new discovery, is to be seen as the island girl. You'll recall Anita Stewart had the original picture.

John Mack Brown

Who is the duke director of "White Shadows in the South Seas," which is to be the "Trader Horn" of the talking screen? Producers will be hot after the big picture, which is made completely in Hollywood.

"Never the Twain Shall Meet" was the basis of the novel which [illegible] appeared.

WHY MR. COLMAN

A press-agent story of late at this department relates that Henry King will no longer permit male actors to wear make-up.

"King made this decision," says the story, "when he was directing Ronald Colman at Yuma, Arizona. It was so hot that the grease paint ran off Colman's face as fast as he applied it. As a result, he was photographed 'au naturelle' and according to King, never made a better appearance on the screen."

LATEST GOSSIP

Mary Pickford left for New York recently for a stay of 10 days. She'll see shows and attend to business matters. On her return she plans [illegible] to seek another [illegible] story. As she expects to meet Douglas Fairbanks in Baden Baden, the Pickford comment is said likely that a new picture will result. Reliable Hollywood gossip has Josephine Dunn, whose hair is the cynosure of comedians, [illegible] well known to cinema fans, weds Clyde E. Greathouse, Los Angeles oil man, today. Marriage will not interfere with her career as she has just signed at Universal to do a comedy with Charles Murray. [illegible] the Writers Club and the Wampas motion picture publicity men are plotting a St. Valentine's Day dinner, along the order of the annual gridiron affair at the Washington. Martin Flavin, the playwright, has arrived, via airplane from New York for another six months' term at M. G. M. Phillips Holmes also is expected back in Hollywood to take part in [illegible]

The Confessions of a Co-Ed at Paramount [illegible] efficiency has reached such a state in Hollywood that one "finds" requires the consent of the pencil. The Four Marx Brothers will make their next picture in Hollywood, and it will be an original. Paramount's writing staff is having sleepless nights trying to top "Coconuts" and "Animal Crackers." After waiting nine months to get a film break in Hollywood, Frances McCoy won a part in M. G. M.'s "Strangers May Kiss." The next morning she woke up with a booming wisdom tooth and the studio had to replace her.

DIDN'T CHANGE HER MIND

A good while back Lois Wilson started turning down offers to play leads in Western stories. With a nice sum laid away, she declared that she was through with ingenues and straight leads and would seek character parts. Contrary to feminine tradition, she has stuck to this decision and now gets her wish in "Seed," at Universal. She'll play John Boles's first wife, the mother of five children.

MADE TO ORDER

This department's rather obvious deduction that Clara Bow would play the lead in "No One Man," is confirmed from a reliable source at Paramount.

Rupert Hughes' novel is a made-to-order story for Clara, whose own romances cannot be numbered on the fingers of a single hand.

Apparently the picture will be the red-head's next.

AFTER-THE-WAR-ARMY GETS SLAPSTICKY IN THE HARRIS

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Ben Lyon and Harry Langdon join the army and spend most of their time as stable boys in the film, "A Soldier's Plaything," which opened Saturday in the Harris.

Vina Delmar, author of that "Bad Girl" book, is credited with the picture story. But really, there isn't much story to it. It is more like a daisy chain of slapstick with bits of romance and melodrama sticking out like faded petals.

AFTER THE BATTLE

There are no battle scenes. Most of it comprises a burlesque view of an after-the-war-is-over army.

Mr. Langdon is comedian enough to get some laughs out of the affair. He's about the best thing in the picture. Fred Kohler, who delights in being the ruffian, is present long enough to get pushed over a balcony. Others in the cast include Noah Beery and Lotti Loder.

No, we don't know how the film ends. We didn't wait that long.

THE STAGE PRESENTS

Frank Radcliffe and Bob Negro entertainers, shine brightly in the vaudeville portion of the bill. They are happy comedians. One is a keen singer. The Wheeler Sisters and the Hauser Boys put on a mild song and dance display. Buddell and Dunigan get away with some patter and Jack Rich plays an accordion. The bill also includes the Three Lamours.

26th Ward Women To Meet Tuesday

The Twenty-sixth Ward unit, Allegheny County League of Women Voters, will meet at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the American Legion home, 2610 Perrysville avenue. The University of Pittsburgh girls' debating team will debate the question of unemployment insurance. The senior girls of Perry High School will give a musical program. Mrs. R. V. Beckert will preside.

Oakland Trade Board To Install Leaders

The Oakland Board of Trade will install officers at its annual meeting tomorrow night in the Hotel Schenley. The officers, elected last month, are: President, Harry S. Brown; first vice president, E. C. Brainerd; second vice president, John A. Freyvogle; third vice president, Robert P. Alexander; secretary, Charles I. Westerfield; treasurer, O. C. Young, and solicitor, Harry Neely.

Musical

Jean Aubert is one of the featured players in "America's Sweetheart," new musical comedy that will be presented for the first time next week in the Nixon.

THIS WEEK AND NEXT IN LOCAL THEATERS

Thurston, veteran magician, assisted by his daughter, Jane, opens the second and final week of his engagement in the Alvin tonight.

Next week's bill in the Alvin will be a comedy, "Mendel Inc.," featuring Joe Smith and Charles Dale, vaudeville favorites for years, as leading comics of the Avon Comedy Four.

Thursday night only, Ted Shawn and the Denishawn dancers will give a performance in the Nixon.

"America's Sweetheart," a new musical comedy featuring Jack Whiting, Gus Shy and Jean Aubert, will have its world premiere in the Nixon, January 19.

Beginning tonight the George Sharp Players in the Pitt will be seen in "Bird in Hand" comedy by John Drinkwater, recently played in the Alvin by a touring company.

For next week in the Pitt, George Sharp has chosen "The Ninth Guest," mystery melodrama, as the bill.

DEATH DRIVER ESCAPES MOB

STEUBENVILLE, O., Jan. 12.—Police today were seeking the driver of an automobile that leaped a curb last night killing a child and injuring several others playing on the sidewalk. Stanley Pawelczyk, 9, was driven against a picket fence and fatally crushed. His sister, Sarah, 3, and brothers, Paul, 5, and Walter, 7, were cut and bruised.

When excited residents rushed from their homes, the driver backed through the crowd and escaped. The machine was found abandoned in another part of the city.

Whisky 'Ager' Hits Radio Reception

BILLINGS, Mont., Jan. 12.—(AP.)—Seeking the source of annoying interference with radio reception, radio dealers assert they have traced the trouble to an electrical whisky "ager."

They have warned that unless the use of the machine is discontinued they will enlist the aid of prohibition authorities to seek out the nuisance.

CALL ACCEPTED BY DR. BARKER

Announcement that he would accept a call from the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church, Buffalo, was made by the Rev. Dr. Percival H. Barker, pastor of the Point Breeze Presbyterian Church, Fifth and Penn avenues, to the congregation yesterday. He will assume his new duties the first Sunday in March.

Dr. Barker received the call last Thursday. At that time he said he would announce his decision January 18, but at the request of the Buffalo church, he wired his acceptance Saturday evening. It was read from the pulpit of the Buffalo church yesterday morning.

The session of the Point Breeze Church will meet January 28 to consider and vote upon a motion that the congregation unite with the pastor in his request to the Presbytery of Pittsburgh for a dissolution of the pastoral relations.

The Buffalo church has property that represents an investment of approximately $1,000,000, with an active membership of 1600.

91 Weds 19, Goes To Ask Blessings Of 'Old Folks'

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 12 (AP.)—Aaron Fretz, 91, and Bertha Eckert, 19, were married here yesterday. The couple left to visit friends in the country, where Fretz said he would seek the blessings of the old folks."

The girl-wife became the stepmother of three children, all over 50 years old.

TRUST PRIEST, DEFY VOLCANO

BATAVIA, Java, Jan. 12.—(AP.)—Trusting implicitly in the ability of a holy man to stay an onrushing stream of lava, residents of a small village at the foot of Merapi, Javan volcano, refused today to leave their homes.

Authorities fearful lest the volcano may overwhelm the town at any hour, were considering forceful evacuation of the town.

The holy man refused to allow the people to leave. The rush of lava was the same direction as in the eruption of a few weeks ago.

PRISON FOR RUM CRIMES URGED BY DR. EWERS

Proposes Congress Liquor Control Experiment If More Severe Policy Fails

Prison sentences instead of fines as a means of enforcing prohibition were urged by the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers in the concluding open forum in the East End Christian Church last night. He suggested the system be tried out for a year, at the end of which, if it is found impracticable, the question be turned over to Congress with permission to experiment in liquor control.

He said in part:

"For thousands of years people have been trying to solve this liquor problem. Beware of the man who is too sure that he has the correct answer. Liquor reform has swept over the country in waves about every 50 years. Here, in Canada, and in Sweden, prohibition has been tried and abandoned. No plan seems perfect. Five have been offered:

"To make liquor cheap as dirt so that every grocery could sell it. That is foolish, too many people are making their own now.

"High license. But that only invites bootleggers and blind pigs again.

"The Canadian system. But that puts the government in the liquor business, which ought not to be.

"Local option, which is excellent except that the territory adjacent to you may be wet and the stuff comes over the border.

"Prohibition, which, as we see is very difficult to enforce, but which the majority wants.

"The United States of America is the bootleggers paradise right now and the next step is racketeering. When bootlegging becomes rich and powerful and insolent, racketeering follows, naturally."

WESTINGHOUSE MEN ADVANCED

Appointment of A. S. Duncan as manager of shipping stocks, and H. C. McElhone to duties in connection with the analytical reviews of office operations and order procedure, is announced by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

Duncan has been with Westinghouse since 1893. In his new work he will assume full charge of the operations of all stock control units at all works of the company.

McElhone joined the company in 1922.

Rehearing Asked In War Blast Case

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(INS.)—Robert W. Onyngе, American representative on the German-American mixed claims commission today filed an application before the commission for a rehearing of the claims against Germany for damages in blasts at the "Black Tom" yards of the Lehigh Valley Road in New Jersey and the fire at a New Jersey munitions plant during the war.

The Americans claimed both fires were started by German spies, but the commission ruled recently that the evidence did not prove this and Germany was absolved from the blame.

Real Estate

James N. Fuller has sold to S. D. Seidle a new two-story brick dwelling and garage on lot 50x135 feet in Morrison Drive, Mt. Lebanon. John A. Brownlee, Mt. Lebanon and Dormont broker, made the sale. Brownlee also reports that he has sold for Paul DelGrande to E. B. Silver, a two-story brick and shingle home and garage on lot 30x110 feet in Waltham avenue, Dormont. J. A. Metz has deeded to L. Antonini a new two-story brick home and garage in Biltmore avenue, Dormont. The lot is 30x110 feet. Brownlee also closed this deal. The total consideration in the three sales is placed at $32,000.

The executive committee of the Pennsylvania Real Estate Association has adopted a plan requesting Gov.-elect Pinchot to aid in encouraging home building. The committee believes that home building will encourage the return of prosperity.

A disbursement of $177,582,378 in real estate mortgage loans was made during 1930 by the Prudential Insurance Company of America, according to the organization's yearly mortgage report. As in previous years, says the report, loans on dwellings were greater than on all other properties together. The report shows that while the total mortgage loans for 1930 were approximately $11,781,200 under the figure for 1929 most of the decrease was in apartment loans.

An improved property in Forty-fourth street, Ninth Ward, on lot 23x127, has been sold by Katie Rafalski to Helen Puwaloski for $5,200.

George J. Bauer has sold to George P. Bummer an improved property in Howard street, Millvale Borough, for a private consideration. The lot measures 22x100 feet.

Applications for building permits follow:

Seventeenth Ward — J. Marcinak, brick garage, 1810 Sarah street, $250.

FOOD PRICES TODAY AND A YEAR AGO

What consumers save over last year's costs

A&P is advertising prices of food today compared with prices a year ago. The differences in the lists generally show substantial reductions.

The idea is to bring home to the housewife how much less her food is costing her than it cost last year at this time. In these figures she sees actual facts, not theories. To her they have a high practical news value.

They are important in another way. They illustrate in dollars and cents A&P's policy—the policy of passing on to the consumer the savings that come from lower food prices.

By A&P's new low prices customers can measure the decline in the cost of the raw materials that enter into what they eat.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

We heard the public judgment of Judge William H. McNaugher, Charles J. Doyle, war correspondent, Controller Robert C. Woodside and Col. James L. Costello.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is grateful to both speakers and stations for their splendid cooperation.

IN STATUS QUO

"Say, are those balalaikas?" we asked "Red" Harvey.

"No, I think they're Baptists."

Francis has every bit the clear diction, articulation and enunciation of the Columbia announcer, as well as an ability to present his ideas in animated form. One sees things he picks from a thing so ignominious as a waste basket, to elevate them to a level of sentimental appreciation.

"What Chicago needs is more unemployed pineapples." And—

"What makes girls run around like they do nowadays?" asked an impatient woman.

"Perhaps they're looking for their mothers," was the pungent reply.

Thanx to Tom Noonan for the musical obbligato on WMCA-KQV yesterday. It was quite a surprise, and Tom was 50 per cent right on our nationality. We're Scotch-Irish, Tom.

QUESTION A DAY

What are the names of Guy Lombardo's brothers and do they play in his orchestra? Marie S., A.

Answer—Carmen, saxophones and flute; Lebert, pianist, and Victor, bass saxophone, all play in the orchestra—heard every Monday night at 10 over WJAS.

Dave Rubinoff, the virtuoso who used to do violin acrobatics in a Liberty avenue theater, was the big noise last night on a WCAE network program featuring Rudy Vallee. He was OK.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Drama continues to be the most difficult of all entertainment to project successfully into the armchairs of the nation. The limitations of the microphone impose a strain upon characterization and situation. The necessity of compressing the action into short periods also works as a tremendous handicap.

The Neptunes of the air waves, however, are at last showing a genuine desire to do something for drama and thus give a more balanced aspect to their menus. They are calling upon noted actors, dusting off famous plays. And they hope to win the ea-cuppers if not to enthusiasms, at least to approval until such time as television is at hand. When television comes, the problem of radio will, of course, be solved.

But television may not come for several years and the radio drama problem will continue to harass the microphone men. One way they might meet it would be to establish an experimental station where various ideas of broadcasting can be tried out—and tried out without commercial or other restrictions. Some small portion of the immense revenue that pours into the coffers of the broadcasters could be devoted to the operation of such a station. It would be money well spent.

England has such a station at Daventry. There all kinds of ideas are given a trial and if found meritorious are placed upon regular broadcasting schedules. Such a station here would prove about the biggest possible boon to broadcasting.

With such a station there would be no time limits to musical or dramatic or other kinds of productions. No thought would have to be given to the ballyhoo boys of sponsored hours. If the broadcasters ever felt like giving all of "Parsifal" or O'Neill's "Strange Interlude"—and we hope they have no such feeling—they could do so.

Consider also the advantage to the politician and the public speaker. Under such a system they would not be cut off in the midst of a debate to make way for a message on toothpaste or soap. The most disconcerting moment to all who lift their ears to the loudspeakers is to have an interesting speech or story or song cut off, that a commercial schedule may be maintained to the last second.

When Lowell Thomas left the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph recently for the more interesting sphere of the day in his broadcast Wednesday night, he created a storm of discussion, including the story at Baker town. He was eulogized with letters in fact of so great an effect that he had to give his unintentional error attention in his broadcast Saturday night.

Just to settle the argument for all time here is an exact quotation from the original wire sent to Mr. Thomas by a representative of the Sun-Telegraph last Wednesday afternoon.

"BURGLARS TRIED TO ROB THE POSTOFFICE AND GENERAL STORE OF BAKERSTOWN, BEST OUTSIDE OF PITTSBURGH, EARLY THIS MORNING."

Bakerstown, still in Pennsylvania and "best suburb of Pittsburgh."

DETROIT AUTO WORKS RECALL THOUSANDS

Ford Summons 107,000 to Two Plants, Other Makers Add to Assembly Lines

DETROIT, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Detroit is reawakening today.

The city of automobiles has been in a condition of industrial hibernation for more than a year. Factory wheels have turned only intermittently. There have been gaps in assembly lines at the numerous automobile factories.

But the "go ahead" signal has been given, and the ever hopeful population of this essentially youthful community believe that "things will be different now."

READY FOR RUSH

The Detroit Street Railways made preparations to transport thousands more workers to their jobs today than went to work last Monday. Most of these, of course, are of the thousands laid off December 18, when the inventory period began, and most of them are going back to work on part time schedules. Nevertheless there is a more optimistic feeling that has existed for many months. Announcement was made that 75,000 employes of the Ford River Rouge plant had been notified to begin work today. Another 32,000 Ford workers were to report at other plants in the Detroit area. Street cars were lined up to furnish transportation for 50,000 of the men recalled to the Rouge plant.

Other automobile factories have issued similar calls to their workers. Dodge, Hudson, Lincoln, Buick, Cadillac and Chrysler are going into production after the annual inventory.

Chevrolet has promised 30,000 workers steady jobs through the winter.

SHOW BRINGS RESULTS

Optimistic reports have come out of the New York automobile show, and statements of industrial leaders that the depression is soon to be a thing of the past are accepted at their face value in Detroit.

During 1930 automobile manufacturers were careful to produce less cars than were sold, so the surplus stock has been absorbed. The people of the Detroit area have been pinched by this policy, but the industry has been placed on a firmer foundation.

All announcements by automobile manufacturers have stated that only former employes will be considered for positions, and unemployed men of other cities have been warned not to come to Detroit seeking jobs. The upturn in the automobile industry will mean improved conditions in steel, glass and all lines in cities from which materials which go into cars are drawn.

'RAIDING TOM' NAMES BANDITS

How Thomas J. (Raiding Tom) Cavanaugh, former police lieutenant and assistant prohibition administrator here, was held up in Schenley Park and, in the fight that followed, was target of the cross fire of the bandits' guns, was told by the former police head today in Criminal Court. Cavanaugh identified two youths — Thomas Mormon, of 148 Forty-fourth street, and Andrew Slupek, 20, of 405 Davidson street—as his assailants.

Mormon and Slupek, arraigned with Eugene Martin, 19, of 4630 Hatfield street, William Black, 18, of 402 Butler street, and Frank Wojciski, 20, of Lawrenceville, pleaded guilty to the theft of automobiles and several robberies. Only one count of larceny is lodged against Black and Wojciski.

Cavanaugh, now head of the Pittsburgh-West Virginia Railroad police, testified the holdup occurred near the golf links, December 5, as he was driving through the park in company with a woman. The bandits forced Cavanaugh to stop, and while Slupek reached into Cavanaugh's pocket, the policeman seized the culprit's hand, according to the testimony. Both Slupek and Mormon emptied their revolvers at him, Cavanaugh testified.

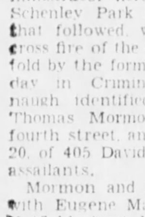
"How I cured my cold in a hurry"



"I drank lots of water all day long to wash the poisons out of my system. I put a little Mentholatum in each nostril to clear my head. At night I rubbed my chest with Mentholatum and covered it with a flannel cloth. Mentholatum does not stain and the extra warmth of the flannel increases its action.

"As the pleasant vapor rose, I inhaled it with every breath. The sore surfaces in my nose and throat were cooled and soothed and my breathing became much easier. I woke up this morning feeling fine."

Thousands are using the Mentholatum treatment. It is a faster, surer way to get rid of colds. TRY IT YOURSELF. PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Folk See Guild Picture

Many members of the Cinema Guild met last night in the Hotel Schenley ballroom for another of the series of four imported movies. Groups of folks gathered in the reception room for a luncheon-cafe and a chat with friends.

Among those were Mrs. Sidney B. [illegible] and Mrs. A. Duckham. Mrs. Duckham wore a green [illegible] with [illegible] to form [illegible] and [illegible] a long [illegible] at the high [illegible]. At the [illegible] she wore a [illegible] with [illegible] and black [illegible].

Mrs. Earl Dietz looked distinctive in a gown of Alencon lace crepe, made [illegible] sleeves banded in satin. Others present were Mrs. Clarence Vole, Mrs. Maxwell Winkler, Mrs. Stella Seeling-ley, Mrs. Elizabeth Sweet, Mrs. Dan Dickson, Mrs. Gerard Lippert in brown chiffon and a mink coat; Mrs. Frederick T. Weil, Mrs. John Henry Palmer in black chiffon and Miss Fay Schoonmaker.

TWEED-FELT HATS ACHIEVE DISTINCTION IN NEW MODE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 12—The new little hats of tweed-felt cap the climax of a millinery season that has been extremely successful by virtue of its versatility and charm. Tweed-felt is one of those happy materials that suggests holiday hats and yet is good for town wear. No doubt many women will speedily avail themselves of this material and we shall see it everywhere. Much liked at present are those gay little feather fancies that in their multi-colored brightness lend such vividness and life to even the dullest most utilitarian little hat. One wonders why milliners have neglected them for so many seasons. The satin hat, too, is gaining in favor. It generally comes into its own about the middle of the season when the charms of felt or velvet become less potent because of constant use. Black satin hats are liked with afternoon clothes that are marked with a degree of formality. This type of hat is not so good with ordinary walking coats or suits.

WE SHOW TODAY a brace of hats that were well worth the sharing, for both are charming, gay and represent the newest creations of leading houses. The first is one of the new tweed-felt models and it has been made for resort wear by the house of Marie-Christiane. It is of brown with a tweedy design in beige and is glorified by a multi-colored feather fancy placed where it should do the most good. These hats are grand for traveling or for packing, they are no trouble at all and don't grow wrinkles, a most useful wrinkle for the woman who likes to look well en route and arrive with hats that do not look as though they had been severely sat upon.

THE AGNES HAT has just made its appearance at the Ritz with great aplomb. It is of black satin with a narrow rolled brim and a shallow crown. A bow of turquoise ribbon is placed at the left side below the crown. This type of hat is due to be widely imitated and copied.

PRIEST SCORES LEAGUE COURT, FINANCIERS

Father Coughlin Gives Uncensored 'Prosperity' Talk Over C.B.S. Network

Blaming international financiers for the United States' present business dilemma and denouncing the League Court as an instrument to defraud our nation of peace and prosperity, the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin delivered his much discussed sermon on "Prosperity" over the Columbia System and WJAS last night. He spoke from the Shrine of the Little Flower in Detroit.

"Prosperity" went on the air uncensored. Columbia officials who had asked Father Coughlin to "tone down" his speech after complaints had been registered for some alleged defamatory remarks of government officials a few weeks ago had nothing to say about last evening's sermon.

TALKS ON TREATY

The Treaty of Versailles and the "unholy ceremony which accompanied its draft in the Hall of Mirrors" was the basis of Father Coughlin's talk. He said:

"It is an historic fact that the name of Jesus Christ was kept outside the Hall of Mirrors and the leaders of nations gathered there ignored the salient Christian fact that God is still the Lord of Nations."

Father Coughlin contended the treaty transferred "our reigns of management from a duly elected government into the hands of private international financiers who worshipped at the altars of the international cult of gold and played financial politics at the expense of a nation's misery."

THE PRIEST DECLARED:

"Blood bonds issued under the terms of the Versailles Treaty brought about a surprisingly low borrowing rate in our Federal Reserve Banks. Credit was given every Tom, Dick and Harry until playing the stock market became as popular as playing bridge.

"A 33 billion dollar penalty inflicted on Germany neither brought Europe peace nor us prosperity. For us it brought the stock market crash and ruin to many. For Europe it has brought an inferno of suspicions.

"It is high time we cease hostilities by trafficking in blood bonds or by entangling ourselves in foreign alliances with the hope of remedying the muddled investments of international financiers."

CITES POPE PIUS

Citing the Encyclical Letter of Pope Pius XIII, Father Coughlin justified the substance of his talk with the words of His Holiness "that this is above all a moral and a religious matter which must be settled by the principles of morality and according to the dictates of religion."

Coming closer to home, Father Coughlin said the middle class was bearing the brunt of international financiers' mistakes. He called attention to the large tax refunds "given the poor rich people of our nation" while the middle class suffers.

Referring to the Secretary of Agriculture's recommended appropriation of $45,000,000 for the relief of those farms which were devastated by last year's drouth, Father Coughlin interpreted it to mean that "this money is to be expended upon seed, upon food for animals, but none of it is to be used to buy food for the farmer himself. While tonight in Arkansas, 100,000 farmers are suffering from starvation."

HEFLIN MENTIONED

Senator Tom Heflin was mentioned in the priest's talk. Father Coughlin quoted him:

"They have put the hog above the human and the mule above the man."

Speaking of the good work being accomplished by his mission in Detroit—"the clothing of 7,000 people during the last three months and the feeding of 14,000 people with money supplied by the middle class and the poor"—Father Coughlin brought his sermon to a close with an appeal to abide by Jesus' commandment—

"Whatsoever you do unto the least of these My little ones you do unto Me.'

"This policy and this alone is the foundation of true prosperity."

Father Coughlin said he had received 300,000 letters indorsing his talks. Five thousand of these were sent from Pittsburgh through WJAS, the local outlet of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Throng at Funeral For Curley's Son

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—(INS.)—With a throng of thousands of mourners, made up of relatives, friends, city workers and state and city dignitaries, the funeral of James M. Curley, Jr., 23, eldest son of Boston's mayor, was held today in Cathedral of the Holy Cross.

Attending the service were Mayor Curley, his four motherless children, and Miss Loretta Bramer, of Chicago, whose engagement to young Curley was to have been announced during the Easter holidays.

Milkman, Struck By Motor Car, Dies

CAMERON, W. Va., Jan. 12.—Joseph Powers, 46, assistant manager for the McConnaughy Dairy Company, died in Reynolds Memorial Hospital, Glendale, this morning as the result of injuries suffered when he was run down by a car driven by Robert Burley, a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad engineer, of Hundred, W. Va. Fog prevented the driver from seeing the man, who was delivering milk along a highway.

St. Louis Club Asks Congress Return Beer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP.)—The Industrial Club of St. Louis wants beer.

It said so in a petition today to Speaker Longworth, maintaining that Congress "by a few words can immediately so amend the Volstead act as to once more legalize the manufacture and sale of non-intoxicating beer." The petition said:

"It is the opinion of the Industrial Club of St. Louis that the President should immediately request Congress to so amend the Volstead act."

It was signed by Samuel W. Fordyce, president, and Chauncey B. Adams, secretary.

WOMAN TO HANG FOR POISONING

SZOLNOK, Hungary, Jan. 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Michael Kardos, the first of three women sentenced to death last year on charges of poisoning their relatives, will be hanged Tuesday morning.

Both of the country's courts of appeals have confirmed the sentence of the court of first instance, and Regent Horthy has refused to reprieve the prisoner. The hangman already has arrived at the prison to make preparations.

Mrs. Kardos is one of 40 women who went on trial early last year on charges of poisoning husbands, sweethearts or children with the aid of a midwife, who was accused of being the inspiration for most of the cases.

The midwife, who bore the name "Auntie Susie," was known as the "widow-maker" of the Theiss Valley. In each case of death, the prosecution charged, she had been called in to nurse the patients and had given them arsenic. She committed suicide when she saw the police approaching to arrest her.

SAVED, TUNNEL VICTIMS REST

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 12.—(AP.)—Rescued after being entombed 800 feet underground nearly 30 hours, 20 men rested today before going back to work in the treacherous Camp Mitchell tunnel of the San Francisco Hetch Hetchy water project.

Meanwhile, investigators were completing inquiries into the tunnel cave-in near Livermore, Cal., which trapped the men last Friday night.

Diminutive Oscar Nelson wormed his way out after 24 hours' imprisonment through an opening too small to admit his companions. More than six hours later, early yesterday morning, the 19 others, coated with mud but unhurt, crawled from their subterranean prison.

Specify Kotex
for lasting comfort in sanitary protection

YOU want to feel absolutely sure of your sanitary protection. Sure that it will free you of all embarrassment. Sure that its comfort will last. Kotex gives you just that sense of security.
It is amazingly absorbent — and the way it absorbs makes for greater comfort. The long, delicate fibres of which it is made draw the moisture quickly away from the surface, leaving your protection dainty and comfortable for hours. Kotex stays soft during its entire use.
It deodorizes. It is shaped to fit. It is adjustable — and can be worn on either side with equal safety. And, of course, it is disposable. If you want lasting comfort in sanitary protection, specify Kotex.

TEACHER TACKLES COUGH

Doesn't Miss a Day of School
"Right before exams I caught a cough. I just hated to stay home and give my class to a substitute. Another teacher recommended Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. When I got home I started to tackle my cough with the syrup. In just a few minutes and I was breathing easier, my throat felt better, I was coughing less. That very night I got well. Went back to school next day." Mrs. L. Stone, 915 West End Avenue, New York.

PAGANISM SCORED AS RETREAT ENDS

Rotation Plan to Give 5,000 Jobs

Pontifical Vespers at Cathedral

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Mr. Pfarr

Attempts are being made to deride the claims that have been made for Attorney Jake Shulgold's right thumb. We told a few days ago that the counsellor's right thumb was probably the most famous right thumb in Pittsburgh. You may remember that it was permanently dislocated when Attorney Shulgold saved a beautiful young woman from drowning last summer.

Today there came two letters, one from "Eightieth Reunion War Correspondent," who whispers that the Shulgold digit was really injured in a battle for the luncheon check with Judge Foster at the Eightieth's reunion. The correspondent believes that the thumb was jerked out of place when Shulgold was reaching for his change as Judge Foster offered to take the check.

Whether this serious charge woud stand up in court, especially in Judge Foster's court, we do not know. Neither do we know whether there is any truth in the anonymous postcard accusation aimed at Attorney Shulgold—the accusation that he deliberately twisted his thumb out of place so it would be different from any other thumb.

We are inclined to scoff at the postcard charge because we have never known Attorney Shulgold to take advantage of the injured member. True enough, he exhibits the thumb to potential sympathizers with a wistful "See?" but it is not of record that he ever held up the thumb before a weakening jury and pleaded for mercy for his client.

Public Works Director Edward Lang was mystified the other day, and any time a public workers director is mystified we're willing to explain the cause.

The Director bought the last apple from a street vendor and was surprised to see the man then step into an automobile at the curb. The Director's surprise was so evident that the man explained, "I'm just selling apples to pay off this car."

Two of our customers have objected to our selection of the late Kin Hubbard's best humor. Brady McSwigan, the roller-coaster man, prefers this:

"The fella that rides the rumble seat of a roadster allus looks like he's ridin' agin his will."

And Phil Moore submits:

"Nowadays a person never knows whether their money is in the bank or a fleeing auto."

The paragraph we printed about the two Dormont husbands who, rather than go out New Year's eve, gave their wives $15 each and played bridge at home, had disastrous effect. One of the wives saw the paragraph and let out a shriek of complaint. Her husband had not given her $15 but $5. Now she wants the other $10.

We know something about a dog and we know something about a cat. The dog is owned by Mrs. M. A. Gorham, of Braddock. For several years the dog has suffered apparently incurable rheumatism in its hind legs and frequently, when the pain is acute, the dog will walk two, three or more blocks on its front legs. The cat is owned by Mrs. W. F. Reamy, of Mt. Washington, and with just a little, but not too much, help, turns somersaults.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 12.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

This is a one-act play. Place, U. S. Senate flask room. Senator Look-Ahead-to-the-Next-Election: "Boys, I got another idea to put the big boss Herbie on the spot."

Will Rogers

Other statesman: "Great, what is it?"

Senator Look-Ahead-to-the-Next-Election: "You remember those three men we O. K.'d for his power commission the other day?"

"Yes." "Well, let's make him take it back."

One amateur statesman: "But can we do that? We would be going back on our own word, wouldn't we?"

Entire chorus: "Ha, ha, ha! Say, with 1932 coming on us, we can do anything, can't we? Come on, let's have one more and we will go in and vote it."

Continued tomorrow.

Yours, WILL.

STRUCTURAL MEN GO ON HALF TIME

Plan to Ease Unemployment Here; 2 Steel Mills Call Back 1,550 Idle Employes

Thousands of men of the Pittsburgh district are expected to resume work soon as the result of the adoption of two plans for unemployment relief.

A plan of rotation, intended to provide alternate weeks of labor for nearly 5,000 men, was announced by the Building Trades Employers' Association.

About 30 per cent of the 16,000 structural workers, carpenters and other trades workers are now employed in the Pittsburgh district, it was stated. Under the new plan part-time work would be provided for approximately 30 per cent, or nearly 5,000 new workers. They would alternate each week with those now employed.

START PLAN IMMEDIATELY

The new system will be put into immediate use by contractors and building trades employers, according to F. O. Reed, association secretary. Former employes now out of work will be given special attention.

The employers' association voted to co-operate in the plan of the Associated General Contractors of America to push construction volume. It was estimated that each $5,000 in construction work will provide year-round employment for one workman.

STEEL MILLS RESUME

As additional jobs are provided, steel workers, metal workers, plasterers, carpenters and other workers will be benefited.

Plans for the Pennsylvania Railroad's new $350,000 river-rail terminal at Baden, on the Ohio River, were mailed Saturday to contractors. Construction work is to start in March, according to officials.

At Monessen the Pittsburgh Steel Company has announced the recall of 350 men.

Two rolling mills and the pilger mill resumed operations at the Allenport plant. Notices were posted ordering idle employes to report for work today, and, according to the superintendent, 1,200 men will be back to work within a week.

The recall of the 350 follows an order issued Friday, which put 130 men to work through the opening of a new blast furnace in Pittsburgh Steel's Monessen plant.

Constable Buried Near Slayer's Grave

The body of Constable Charles Wyke, 53, lay today in a grave in Coraopolis Cemetery, near that of his slayer, Robert Fielding, 72, who was buried last Wednesday. Fielding shot himself after fatally wounding the constable, who died later in Sewickley Valley Hospital.

Wyck's funeral was held yesterday in the South Heights Methodist Episcopal Church. The pastor, the Rev. G. E. Melanquist, also conducted rites at the grave.

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL, LIGHTED BY CANDLES, IN PONTIFICAL VESPER SERVICE ATTENDED BY 4,000 CLOSED RETREAT CONFERENCE

DECLARES IDLE WILL DEFY BAN

Robert A. Woods, secretary of the Trades Union Unity Council, today reiterated that unemployed men would defy police edicts and stage their "hunger parade" Wednesday. A city permit has been denied. The parade is scheduled to be in four groups, to meet in front of the City-County Building. Groups will start from the North Side, South Side, Lawrenceville and the Hill District, it was said.

The Trades Union Unity League is sponsoring a mass meeting in North Side Carnegie Hall tomorrow night at which William Z. Foster, Communist party leader, will speak.

Hearing of Blanchard Wright, 40, of Federal street, arrested for selling magazines without a permit, was to be continued today in Central Police Court. Magistrate Leo Rothberg continued the hearing from Saturday, when Wright was arraigned on a charge of violating a city ordinance. Police testified he was selling copies of "Unemployed," a magazine published by the League of Industrial Democracy.

$1,300 Fire Laid to Overheated Furnace

The two-story frame home of Ralph Constantino, at 310 Carrick avenue, was damaged to the extent of $1,300 by fire last night. The blaze was believed to have been caused by an overheated furnace.

VOTE MACHINE CASE SLATED

The appeal from the decision of the local Common Pleas Court on the taxpayers suit to block the $1,250,000 voting machine contract awarded by the County Commissioners to the Poole Engineering Company, of Baltimore, was to be aurged today before the Supreme Court of Philadelphia.

According to Francis S. Guthrie, who filed the suit in behalf of the tavpayers, the Poole Company did not furnish a certificate showing their machine to have been in successful operation before the letting of the contract and that the bond furnished was not in proper form. His objections were not sustained by the local court, Judge Frank P. Patterson deciding the contract legal.

The date for the hearing had been advanced by Chief Justice Robert S. Frazer as delivery of the machines is being held up by the Poole Company pending the final disposition of the suit.

MAN WOUNDED IN GUN FIGHT

Shot in the legs during a revolver duel between Patrolman William Pietz and a Negro at Wylie avenue and Belinda street last night, Louis Johnson, 24, a Negro, of 2817 Webster avenue, was in Mercy Hospital today.

Pietz, summoned to the scene to break up a fight between three Negroes, was fired upon by one of the combatants, police reported. When the patrolman opened fire the trio fled.

An hour later Johnson was found on a doorstep near his home, his legs bleeding from bullet wounds.

Johnson said he was walking near the scene during the shooting, but police believed he was one of those who participated in the fight. A suspicious person charge was lodged against him.

Utah Railway Buys Giant Motor Here

The Salt Lake and Utah Railroad has purchased from the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company a new 60-ton electric locomotive in order to handle its increased business. This is the sixth electric locomotive purchased from the Westinghouse company by this Western carrier.

Pair Fined $5 In Theft of Pickles

Accused of having stolen a quantity of pickles from the delicatessen store of Samuel Balsam at 4822 Second avenue, William Gillingham, 16, of Chatsworth street, and James Donahue, 19, of Blair street, were find $5 each in Central police court yesterday after Lieut. George Pischke testified he found them climbing over a fence in the rear of the store with the loot.

WORK CENSUS CIRCULARS OUT

Circulars containing instructions to residents of Pittsburgh regarding the unemployment census to be started Thursday, were placed in the hands of Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of the public schools, and Father Paul E. Campbell, of the parochial schools, by James E. Routley, district supervisor of the census, today.

The circulars include information as to why the census is being taken and what type of information the enumerator will want when he arrives at your front door.

Supervisor Routley believes many families that, otherwise, would not have previous knowledge of the government's plan, will be reached in this manner. He has received assurance of full co-operation from both Dr. Graham and Father Campbell.

Painters Association In Annual Session

A delegation of the Master Painters' and Decorators' Association in Pittsburgh was in Reading today to attend the forty-third annual state convention of the association. They were headed by P. A. Freyvogel, state president; John B. Dewer, president of the Pittsburgh association, and J. J. Kassouf, business secretary. An attempt will be made to bring the 1932 convention to Pittsburgh.

Laundryman Routs Pair Looting Shop

Surprising two Negroes ransacking his laundry at 43 Roberts street early today, Paul Yee, a Chinese, put the pair to rout in a fight. The pair ran to the street. Yee followed, and stopped only when one of the intruders shot at him. The men escaped.

FINED FOR ROW WITH POLICE

John Donahue, 35, a salesman of Brooklyn, arrested yesterday following a fight in a Federal street restaurant, was fined $25 by Magistrate Ray E. Schneider in North Side Police Court today.

Donahue fell asleep at his dinner, and, according to the testimony of the restaurant proprietor, an officer was called to awaken him.

Infuriated by the sudden awakening, Donahue attacked and bested the officer, Charles Otterson, in a fist fight, witnesses testified.

Several patrons assisted the officer. In the patrol, according to testimony, Donahue renewed hostilities, and engaged in another fight with Otterson and Patrolman Harry Buch.

700 EXPECTED AT FIRE SCHOOL

The second annual fire school of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce will open tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in the chamber auditorium, John T. Waldron, deputy chief of the New York City Fire Department, will be the speaker. Chief Waldron will be introduced by Fire Chief Richard L. Smith, of Pittsburgh.

It is expected 700 watchmen, janitors, building superintendents and caretakers will attend the school. Every deputy chief of the city department will attend. A special fire alarm operator will be at the switchboard of the chamber to take calls for deputy chiefs in case of a fire in any district.

WAR RENEWED ON BUS SERVICE

Charges that the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company has failed to fulfill its duty to the public as a common carrier and that its policy has been to throttle motor coach transportation and prevent its normal development were made in a brief filed with the Public Service Commission today by attorneys for the Allied Boards of Trade, who have been carrying on the fight against the 25-cent bus fare.

The brief was completed at a conference held on Saturday by W. G. Negley and George P. Kountz, attorneys for the boards, and Harry Bastow, president.

In its conclusions the brief declared the Pittsburgh district is inadequately supplied with transportation facilities, that motor coaches can supply this deficiency, but that the company does not attempt to meet the need.

Instead, the company elects to render only a discriminatory service at an arbitrary price and subordinates its motor coach business to the interests of another transportation system, according to the charges.

Baptists to Plan Campaign for Funds

Plans for a concentrated campaign to raise funds to meet current expenses of the Baptist churches here will be discussed by ministers and leaders of the denomination Wednesday afternoon in the Sundusky Street Baptist Church. W. H. Bowler, executive secretary of the Northern Baptist convention, will address the meeting.

Firemen Risk Lives to Save 7 Pigs Bent on Suicide

Assistant Fire Chief Clyde Stanger and Hoseman Frank Dennis, of the West View fire department, risked their lives to save seven pigs twice in a fire which destroyed the home of Moses Cable, a Negro, of Charwood street, Ross Township, last night. Hoseman John Smith suffered a fractured ankle while dragging hose to the burning house and was sent home after receiving treatment from a physician. The fire loss amounted to $2,500, according to Stanger.

Stanger and Dennis first got the pigs out of a shed endangered by flames, but the animals ran back into the building and were rescued with difficulty on the second occasion. Cable and his wife were away from home when flames were discovered. Firemen saved other dwellings threatened for a time by the blaze.

Sharpsburg police today were investigating the cause by a fire which damaged the home of Michael Dolan, of 207 Linden avenue, Sharpsburg, a brother of Police Chief Patrick Dolan. The fire started in a second-floor bedroom, Saturday, firemen said, causing a loss estimated at $400 by Fire Chief Oscar Schultz.

Ministers Score Darrow As 'Religion Racketeer'

Clarence Darrow, Chicago criminologist and agnostic, was branded a "religion racketeer" at a United Presbyterian Ministerial Association meeting today. Clergymen criticized the Rev. Dr. Robert MacGowan, of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church, for consenting to debate with Darrow the subject "Is Religion Necessary?" at Carnegie Music Hall Thursday night.

In defense of his participation in the debate, Dr. MacGowan said:

"I was chosen by an interdenominational committee to represent the viewpoint of the church. There is a crisis in the realm of spiritual religion, and we must be prepared to advance reasons for the faith within us.

"We should not ignore attacks on the church. The last debate here on religion did a world of good. Great causes should be kept before the public mind. The clergy makes a serious mistake when it ignores rather than faces attacks on religion."

Darrow also was scored as a man who is commercializing people's interest in religion by the Rev. Jacob A. McInturff, minister of Calvary M. E. Church, in attendance at a meeting of the Methodist Episcopal Ministerial Association. The Rev. Mr. McInturff said:

"It is my understanding that Clarence Darrow is making these debates on religion throughout the country because he has discovered that commercializing religion is a remunerative 'racket.'"

Members had hastily adjourned the meeting to prevent discussion on the subject.

PRIEST RAPS TREND TO ATHEISM

Father Turner Hails Catholic Church as Bulwark; Bishop Dissents From Dr. Cadman

The tidal wave of modern paganism is dashing against a bulwark, the Catholic church, which has withstood the torrents for 1,900 years, the Rev. Joseph P. Turner, Redemptorist father of West End, N. J., told nearly 1,000 dignitaries of the church and laymen last night in the William Penn Hotel.

Father Turner, a noted missionary, gave the principal address at the concluding meeting of the fourth annual national retreat movement conference. He said:

"Universities are turning out as graduates atheists, agnostics, scoffers of church and religion.

"The stage, literature and press of today are laden with the filth that is called the modern emancipation of the human race."

CADMAN THEORY ASSAILED

Father Turner's address was an amplification of a sermon by Bishop John Mark Gannon, of Erie, at the pontifical vesper service held yesterday afternoon in St. Paul's Cathedral. With every seat occupied and the aisles crowded, Bishop Gannon took issue with the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, noted radio preacher, who spoke in Pittsburgh the Sunday previous. Bishop Gannon, pointed out the importance of the retreat movement and the sacrament of the Holy Eucharist.

Pointing out that Christ chose rather than the radio, the apostles and the disciples, set them apart from the world, gave them the sacraments and commissioneid them to "Teach all men," Bishop Gannon continued:

"If society is to be cured of the immorality which corrupts it, if governments are to be relieved of the confusion which confronts them, if men are to be refashioned after the image and likeness of God, it will not be accomplished through radios, or television or electric refrigerators—but it will be through the holy sacraments of Christ and the burning zeal and pious example of men like you."

Asserting that God's divine purpose in raising marriage to a sacrament was the procreation of children in Christian manners, Bishop Gannon said:

"Remove the dogma of the sacramental character of matrimony and you immediately descend into a philosophy of morality scarcely higher than that which governs the beasts of the field."

DUQUESNE HEAD SPEAKS

The Very Rev. Joseph J. Callahan, C. S. Sp., president of Duquesne University, spoke at the dinner last night on the "Educational Phase of the Retreat Movement," emphasizing the necessity for meditation and thinking. He said:

"Knowledge isn't thinking. We can teach students to learn mathematics, the arts, even football, but our hardest task is to teach them to think."

Bishop Hugh C. Boyle thanked those who had aided in the retreat conference, particularly the Pittsburgh laymen who had organized it and made it and the recent Eucharistic rally possible, Judge Frank P. Patterson, of Common Pleas Court, was toastmaster, William A. Ryan, past president of the movement, introduced him and the Rev. Bertin Donahue, C. P., head of St. Paul's retreat house, Carrick, said the opening prayer.

Glass and Pottery Exhibition Opens

A 12-day glass and pottery show opened today in the Fort Pitt and William Penn Hotels in connection with the meeting of the Western Glass and Pottery Association, composed of manufacturers and salesmen from Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. Colored body and glaze designs with many decorations will be displayed.

The annual banquet of the salesmen and manufacturers will be held in the Fort Pitt Hotel tomorrow night. The present officers will be re-elected at the annual meeting tomorrow.

JEALOUSY HINTED IN DOUBLE KILLING AT VANDERGRIFT

MAGAZINE TALE HELD CLUE TO MURDER

Page From Love Story Found Where Estranged Man, Woman Were Slain

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Jan. 12.—The first page of a magazine story, "Love's Revenge," found fastened to a stake in the garden of the home of Frank Jones, on the old Leechburg road, near here, today had police wondering what significance, if any, it had in the slaying Saturday of Mrs. Jones, 38, and James Z[illefrow], 38, former wrestler, in the kitchen of the Jones home. It was found by County Detective John Red, who heads the coroner's investigations.

State police joining the detectives announced they expected to arrest someone today.

Mrs. Jones and Zillefrow were found shot to death by a neighbor who had called at the home to deliver groceries. Dr. James Harkins, Westmoreland County Coroner, said the woman had been shot four times and the man five.

Detectives investigating the murders were of the opinion that Zillefrow had put up a frantic struggle before he was slain. Knuckles on his right hand were black and blue and furniture in the kitchen, where the bodies were found, was upset and broken.

John Cielio, Orrin Hone and Harry Rupert told investigators they had seen the man and the woman a few hours before they were found dead. Cielio and Rupert told of seeing two men entering or leaving the house later speeding away in an automobile.

The dead woman's husband told police that Zillefrow, who was separated from his wife, had been making his home with him for several weeks.

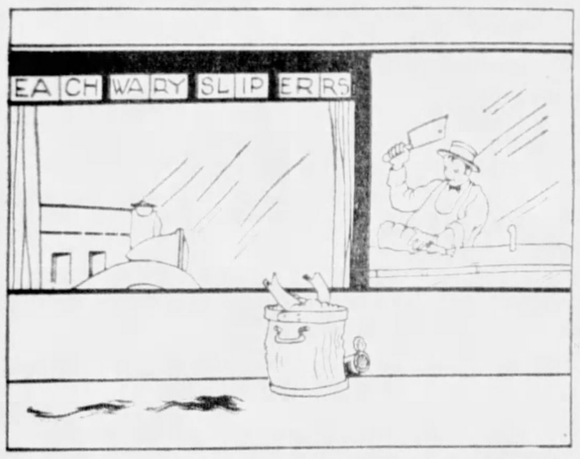
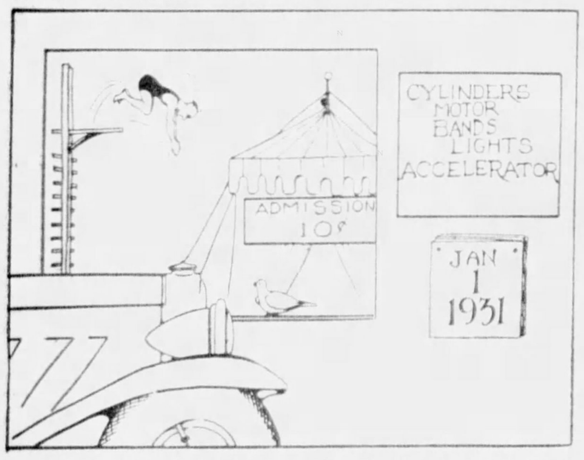
$300 Cash Prizes — Auto Show Contest — 200 Show Tickets



No. 18—This one should be easy. There are four words in the window; each word has two pairs of letters. Cross out one pair in each word and those that remain will form the name of a make of automobile.

Then find four objects with first and last letters the same as the first and last letters of the car.



No. 19—What is the name of the make of automobile shown in the drawing?

Look at the sign above the calendar and if you study it carefully you will find the name.

Then look for three words that begin and end with the same letters as the make of the car. There are four such words indicated, or pictured. Try to name them all.

(The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, co-operating with the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers Association, is donating these prizes for the best answers and slogans.

Here is the Sun-Telegraph Automobile Puzzle Contest based on passenger cars to be exhibited in the forthcoming annual Automobile Show to be held at Motor Square Garden January 17 to 24, inclusive.

One or two puzzle pictures in each of which will be concealed the name of an automobile and in each of which are hidden several words, will be published every day in the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Readers of the Sun-Telegraph are invited to find the names of the automobiles and to name the hidden words in each puzzle and send them to the Auto Show Contest Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, 612 Grant street, together with a good slogan descriptive of the Automobile Show. YOU MUST SEND ALL YOUR ANSWERS AT THE SAME TIME IN ONE ENVELOPE. AT THE COMPLETION OF THE CONTEST ACCURACY, NEATNESS AND CLEVERNESS OF SLOGAN WILL BE CONSIDERED IN AWARDING THE PRIZES.

Prizes totaling $300 in gold and 200 show tickets are to be awarded the winners in the contest. Be sure to put your name and address with the slogan at the top of the first page. Your name should appear on each page you send in.

The final pictures will be published January 19. All answers must be in the hands of the Auto Show Contest Editor no later than noon Saturday, January 17. The winners will be announced at the Automobile Show, Monday evening, January 19, and in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph January 20.

At various times during the contest, the names of passenger cars to be exhibited at the show will be printed. From this list contestants are to pick the names of the cars.

CONTESTANTS ARE NOT TO SEND IN ANSWERS UNTIL THE FINAL PUZZLE PICTURES HAVE BEEN PRINTED. THEN SEND THEM IN ALL TOGETHER AT THE SAME TIME. WRITE THE NAMES OF THE CARS ON SEPARATE SHEETS OF PAPER WITH THE HIDDEN WORDS OF EACH PICTURE IN THE ORDER IN WHICH THE PICTURES APPEARED.

Your slogan must accompany the answers. It may be either rhyme or prose and should be applicable to the Automobile Show. It must be short, snappy and clever. Remember, it is an important factor in deciding the winners.

Any person is eligible to enter this contest except employes of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph or members of their families.

The contest started December 28. If you have missed any of the puzzles you can get back copies of the Sun-Telegraph by addressing the circulation department. Send three cents for daily papers or 10 cents for Sunday's, or the equivalent in postage stamps.

LIST OF PRIZES

For the best list of correct auto names, discovered mistakes, and the cleverest slogan, the following prizes will be awarded:

FIRST PRIZE—$100 in gold.
SECOND PRIZE—$50 in gold.
THIRD PRIZE—$25 in gold.
FIVE PRIZES of $10 each, $50 in gold.
Fifteen prizes of $5 each, $75 in gold.
And 100 prizes of two tickets each, good any afternoon at the Auto Show.

In case of ties, equal prizes will be awarded tying contestants.

PITTSBURGH GOES OLD GOLD BY BIG PLURALITY

Famous Steel City gives O.Gs. Smashing Vote in latest Ripley Taste-Test

Believe it or not, taste is taste, whether its owner sports a dinner coat or a dinner pail.

I covered Pittsburgh from the Mayor's office to the sootiest, hottest steel mills. Gave every mother's son I met the four leading cigarettes with brand names concealed, and said "Try 'em!"

At the steel mills, OLD GOLD won . . . by 34%. At the William Penn Hotel . . . O. G. won . . . by 32%. At Pittsburgh Police Headquarters, O. G. by 49%. At the Westinghouse works . . . a high voltage victory. O. G. ahead by 36%!

Blue bloods . . . red bloods . . . brain and brawn . . . they all like OLD GOLD'S throat-ease and taste thrill.

Can't OLD GOLD lose? It hasn't yet.

NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

BANDITS ESCAPE WITH $400 IN SIX WEEK-END HOLDUPS HERE

ARMED GANGS LOOT STORES, STATIONS

Merchants, Attendants Lose Cash, Jewelry to Thugs; Man Robbed of 20c, Auto

More than $400 was obtained by bandits who staged six holdups in various sections of the city over the week-end.

W. B. Epler, an attendant at the service station of the Atlantic Refining Company at 5734 Butler street, was robbed of $19 by three armed men last night. They escaped in an automobile.

Two bandits bound Stanley Kissel, an attendant at the Hoskins Service Station at 3039 Bigelow boulevard, Saturday night and escaped with $40.

Sam Cohen, of 1604 Jancey street, was held up in the rear of his home by three bandits and robbed of $10 and a watch valued at $50.

In the holdup of the meat market of Joseph Mykytiuk, at 130 South Eighteenth street, two bandits obtained $200 Saturday night.

The Standard Oil Company service station at Penn and Denniston avenues, was visited by a lone thug who stole $75 after holding L. W. Diehl, the attendant, at bay with a revolver.

GROCERY HELD UP

An armed thug held up the grocery store of Mrs. Marcella Kruth, at 1225 Grotto street, took $12 from the cash register and 20 cents from Leonard Mallig, of 1243 Grotto street, a customer. He then drove away in Mallig's automobile.

Arrested in connection with the robberies of three stores in upper Fifth avenue, Frank Lapinski, 21, of 3513 Aliquippa street, and Frank Graff, of 2500 Center avenue, were being held in the Central Police Station, according to police. The two, held on suspicious person charges, were said to have admitted the robberies.

Accused of several gasoline station robberies, four youths were held for court by Justice of the Peace James A. Hernon, of Sharpsburg. The four gave their names as Dennis Marcoly, of North Main street, Sharpsburg; Nick Szulinski, of North Main street, Sharpsburg; Earl E. Leach, of Butler street, and Charles E. Schaffer, of Cherry street, Etna.

3 HELD IN AUTO THEFT

Three youths arrested in an alleged stolen automobile were held for court yesterday by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court. They were Stanley Kusik, 18, of 1816 Merrimac way; John Otway, 20, of 322 Walter street, and Steve Miller, 21, of 2017 Wrights way.

Police today were searching for the thief who entered the Calhoun Junior High School Building, Eighth and Forest avenues, West Homestead, ransacked several desks and escaped with $7.58 and a box of cigars belonging to Prof. V. Y. Wilkinson, a member of the faculty. Entry was gained by breaking glass in a door, police were told. The robbery was discovered when a janitor entered the building yesterday.

POMEROY NEW FREIGHT CHIEF

After a two-year absence from Pittsburgh, William McL. Pomeroy returns to this city as freight traffic manager of the Central region of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He will take up his new duties Friday. Prior to going to Philadelphia as general freight agent, he was for several years assistant general freight agent in Pittsburgh.

Railroad officials also announced Emmett S. McCormick, trainmaster of the Akron division, has been promoted to trainmaster of the Conemaugh division with headquarters here. John Lester Pringle, formerly trainmaster of the Conemaugh division, has been promoted to freight trainmaster of the Eastern division.

Officer Continues Stolen Gun Reward

The reward of $200 offered by Corp. Larry Moore, of the State Highway Patrol, for the return of his gun stolen during a holdup in the office of Justice of the Peace Eugene Mehrlich, Millvale, last week, still stands, the officer said today. More than a dozen suspects have been rounded up since the holdup, but have been released, as none of them resembled the boy bandit. Besides Squire Mehrlich and Corp. Moore, Chief of Police Philip Mitzell, of Millvale, and another man was in the office at the time.

Pittsburgh Sportsmen Build Addition to Page Cabin With 175-Year-Old Oak

The strong oak materials of the weather-beaten and time-worn structure which was the Charles L. Lutz homestead on the new county airport site are being removed to build a log cabin on the Fox Chapel road.

F. Lemoyne Page and Richard Boyles, Pittsburgh sportsmen, are salvaging the materials and transporting them to Page's property on the Fox Chapel road, where they will be used to form an addition to Page's log cabin. The County Commissioners gave the men permission to salvage the wood and other materials.

The house, sturdy oak construction, is said to be more than 175 years old. It was constructed without nails, the logs being held together by pegs, and chinked with clay. The work will be completed by today or tomorrow, the men said.

"DON'T GROW OLD!"

John Boles warns you

JOHN BOLES, Universal, whose excellent singing voice and fine acting ability have made him one of the screen's most popular stars, tells you what he considers woman's most priceless possession.

Learn the complexion secret 98% of the important screen actresses know

"NOWADAYS no woman need be afraid of birthdays," John Boles says. "Charm isn't by any means measured by years!

"One of the most alluring women I know is . . . But it wouldn't be fair to tell! No one would ever guess—and she's admired wherever she goes.

"These days not only stage and screen stars but hundreds of other women have learned a very important secret of allure. YOUTH is recognized for the priceless thing it is . . . complexions are kept glowing."

How amazingly the famous stars keep youth!

"To keep youth, guard complexion beauty," they will tell you. "Keep your skin temptingly smooth, alluringly aglow!"

The actresses famous for their charm the world over use Lux Toilet Soap, and have for years. So well-known is their preference for this fragrant, beautifully white soap that it is found in theater dressing rooms everywhere . . . is official in all the great film studios.

Of the countless Hollywood, Broadway, European stars who use this white soap, some have the fine-grained skin that is inclined to dryness; some the skin that tends to be oily; some the in-between skin . . .

Whatever your individual type may be, you, too, will find Lux Toilet Soap the perfect soap—so neutral, so bland is its effect on the skin.

EVELYN LAYE, co-starring with John Boles in a recent picture, says: "Lux Toilet Soap is a wonderful soap."

By SALLY MARTIN

Don't Love Too Nobly If You Would Be Happy

Mona's a One Man Woman—The only thing the matter is She can't get the man.

So, like Crippled Heart who flooded this board not long ago with words of mourning about his dear little Queen who persisted in handing him the ice treat.

She's just another that kindly death will open his arms and gather her in if she can't have her Romeo.

"And I know just how that poor fellow feels," she bobs giving us a mean look. "You were wrong to ridicule his noble devotion and to him to peddle his wares in Hollywood. You just don't understand a delicate sentiment like True Love."

Doesn't Love Her

If you like Teary Tales tune in.

My Dear Miss Martin—I just read the tragic story of Crippled Heart, and I am so—so sorry for him. I know just how he feels, because my heart also has been broken. How could you speak so cruelly to him?

I think you were very wrong to ridicule him and tell him to peddle his story to the movies. You just don't understand a delicate sentiment like true love. But I do, and I know that it isn't anything to sneer about.

I am 22 and have found my Prince Charming, but it doesn't do me any good. He doesn't seem to love me at all. So that is why I am so sad and so able to understand Crippled Heart. This man I love is very handsome, has a good education and is very refined. I also belong to an excellent family, but the trouble is that I am only a poor working girl, while a man like him looks. I know for some girl whose name is in the Social Register.

He worked in the same office I did and I did a great deal of work for him. He said there was no one else in the office who did things well enough to suit him. He has said many times that he liked me. But he never asked me out. I have been very nice to him, but it is not my policy to run after men—so I never have let him see how I really felt.

One-Man Woman

I am not working in that office any more so I don't even see him, except occasionally, but I just can't forget him. There isn't a day—an hour—when I'm not thinking of him and looking for him and to love me as I love him.

I, too, like Crippled Heart, have prayed many times that God might take me if I can't have the one I love, because life just isn't anything without him. Do you think that a wound like mine ever does heal? I know that even if it does it will leave a terrible scar. It's all so hopeless.

I know now that one can truly love another without that love being reciprocated. That is what's happened to me. Isn't it terrible to have your life wrecked like that? I have never been in love before and I am a one-man woman, and I just can't forget.

Well, I guess I will just go on living with my lost love in my heart till death comes and takes me. That's all I can see ahead of me now. MONA.

Oh, yeah?

Quit fooling yourself, Kid! Yes, I know, maybe you are in love with this paragon. And if you are, naturally it hurts. But what of it? Lots of us want things we can't have, but that's no excuse for turning sour on life and holding up like a gopher. Or for thinking that our lives are "wrecked." No one, Mona, can wreck your life. No one can wreck it but you. And you'll do it, sure as death and taxes, if you go on keeping yourself all bogged up with self-pity.

Love is a noble sentiment. But it has to be used with sense. You're making a hangnail out of yours. Just as Crippled Heart made a hangnail out of his.

Just an Excuse

Time was when people were plumb full of praise and petting for folks who refused to live any more because Bill or Mary had turned 'em down. But them days are gone forever, sister. Why are they gone? Because men and women realize now that they were a lot of hooey. They were an excuse for laziness and cowardice. They were an excuse for people who didn't have the sand to stand a few smacks and bumps.

So don't come in here looking for a lot of bouquets. You won't get them. There isn't anything noble or beautiful about this one-sided love of yours any more than there is anything noble or beautiful about an addiction to dope.

Snap out of it! Take yourself by the neck and put this dream affair behind you! Fill your life so full of adventures and interests that you won't have any time to waste on it. It's your duty to live, little girl. We were all put here to live as gloriously and as bravely and as richly as we can. We were put here not to let our troubles and disappointments "get" us . . . but to win through them to fuller, more gracious lives . . . happier lives . . . brighter lives.

"But I'm a One Man Woman," you cry. Nonsense, Honey. You only think you are. Chances are you'll be in love a dozen times before the One Man comes along. And when he does, you'll look back on your present sorrow as just a foolish dream.

So crash into it! Sand'll get you there!

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The scalp should be kept clean if the hair is to be healthy. If the shampoo is delayed for one reason or another the scalp can be cleaned by rubbing with eau de cologne. Dry shampoos of orris root are no good for the hair. They are an unsatisfactory makeshift, leaving a dull gray shadow on the glorious crown.

A shampoo once a week does no harm to the glorious crown. It acts as a stimulating tonic, particularly if the warm rinsing is followed by a rousing spraying of cold water, and if the scalp is frictioned until it is pink and glowing. Oftimes the hair enjoys a change of shampoo medium. Dry shampoos are makeshifts—no help to the growth.

Exercises for a lovely neck: Move the head from side to side with strong muscular pull. Throw the head backward, pull it forward, using enough muscular effort to feel a reaction above the collar bones. Apply a heavy cream every night, rubbing it in with strong upward strokes of the fingered palms. Apply ice after the cream, say prayers and go to bed.

Hard water can be softened by the addition of a lotion made by combining eight ounces of rubbing alcohol with one-half ounce of ammonia and one dram of oil of lavender flowers. One teaspoonful suffices for a washbowl full of water. Excellent for the removal of blackheads as soap forms richer suds when a softening agent is added to the water.

Household Hints

Brush brown floor stain over white candles to obtain an antique effect.

To dissipate the flavor of baking powder in baking powder biscuits add a teaspoonful of sugar to the ingredients.

Tuck at of bread crumbs on the kitchen shelf is mighty convenient. To keep it constantly full and ready for use, take the odds and ends of stale bread which might otherwise be thrown away and toast them in a corn popper. Then roll and when fine, place in a glass jar with a tight top.

Marriage Failures Nearly Always Caused by That Word IF, Says Fay King

Mary Agrees With Madge About Veritzen's Letters

Mary's appearance in the Underwood living room was not the surprise to me that it was to Noel. He had his back to the door. I was facing it. I had satisfied myself that the door was locked, but of course knew that Harry, Dicky, or Lillian could come in with the apartment keys. So when the door swung ajar slightly and silently, disclosing Lillian in the doorway with Mary behind her, I was not startled, and was able to preserve a "poker face" as Lillian put her finger to her lips, beckoned Mary inside and went away, closing the door silently after her.

I was glad that she had not come sooner when I was calling Noel to account for his jealousy, and was telling him what I believed were his father's plans for Mary and Colin Cameron, the "talkie" star. She had arrived however in time to hear me say that Noel's father would believe the boy hopelessly frightened by his letter, and that Noel was trying to avoid Mary for her own sake in order to protect her from his father's threats. I was amply rewarded for my effort to keep Noel ignorant of her presence by the look of joy that flashed into her eyes when I had finished.

Noel sprang to his feet and wheeled toward the door as Mary said: "Not half so much as he has puzzled me."

"Mary!" he exclaimed.

"In person!" she said with a hint of mockery. Then her flippant manner dropped as he strode toward her and, apparently forgetting that I existed, took her into his arms and crushed her tightly to him.

"Tell me, Noel," she said as soon as she found opportunity for speech. I reflected with a little smile that not even Colin Cameron in a movie kiss could have done a more effective job—"Is it all over?"

"Is what all over, sweet?" he asked softly.

"Your keeping away from me, and acting so queerly ever since that awful letter came?"

He lifted his head and sent an inquiring look at me.

"Oh," didn't you mind Auntie Madge," Mary said, misunderstanding the glance. "She's the best scout going. I don't care whether she sees us gurgling a heavy petting act or not. But I do want an answer to my question.

"There's only one answer possible, Noel," I reminded him, and he drew his sweetheart closer.

"I'll never hurt you in any way again," he said extravagantly, but Mary saw nothing exuberant in the boast.

"And we can tell your father to go—where he ought to have gone years ago?" she went on, throwing her arms around Noel's neck and kissing him as if I had not been in the room. I found myself marveling, not for the first time, at the change in standards and manners since my own young girlhood. Mary's affection for her betrothed was as sweet and innocent as that of any sheltered young girl in the years before the World War. But I could not imagine any combination of circumstances in which I would have exchanged kisses with Dicky where anyone could have witnessed the caress.

"I never want to see my father or hear of him again," Noel said grimly.

"Remember what I just told you, Noel," I said, and Mary leaned back in his arms and looked over at me.

"Come over here, you two," I said with a smile, "and let me tell you a few things for your own good. It will take but a few minutes. Then I'll give you a few seconds to say good-night, and then I'm going to take you back to our apartment, Mary, and put you to bed. At the same time, Noel, I'm going to send the Underwoods in here with instructions to get you to sleep as soon as possible. Now sit down opposite me, that's right. Tell me, what makes you think starvation faces you?"

They looked at each other, then Noel spoke.

"Why! My father's threats," he said. "He's pretty powerful in the only lines we know anything about."

I looked at him for a moment purposely trying to register lofty disdain, then I turned to Mary.

"Perhaps I may be able to drill this into your brain," I said. "I seem to have failed with Noel. It's just this. The letters which Noel's father wrote to him and to you are actionable, to say the very least. Noel's is infinitely worse than yours, and he made distinct threats in the one he wrote you. I am not going to tell you all that he wrote to Noel, but it was so blackmailing an epistle that I think even Mr. Veritzen's nearly unhinged mind has realized the precarious position in which he will find himself if Noel chooses to push the matter. But above everything he must not discover that Noel destroyed the letter."

"Does Noel remember the way the letter started, and what kind of paper it was written on?" Mary asked, and I gave a comprehending little start. She had hit upon a shrewd move, but would she be able to carry it out?

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Introductions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When introducing a young man to my husband and some friends should I introduce my husband first, or the ladies who are in the party?

2. Should I introduce other men to my husband, or should I introduce him to other men? Please tell me just how to make this introduction.

3. When my husband brings a friend home and I have friends there, should he introduce his wife to the friend with him first, or should he introduce the friends I have to his friend first, and then introduce me, his wife, last? B. Y. G.

1. First present your husband to the ladies in the group, and then introduce him to the other gentlemen.

2. The informal phrase "this is," the form we use so often for family introductions, is appropriate in this kind of introduction. For instance, "Mr. Warren, this is my husband," or "Fred, this is Mr. Warren," or, simply, "Mr. Warren, my husband."

3. He should first introduce the man to you, since you are the hostess of the home. Then he or you introduce this man guest to the women, your guests.

Telling the News by Note

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to announce my engagement very soon and I would appreciate it very much if you will give me some information concerning the announcement cards. I am giving a supper for my girl friends, but I do not know whether it is proper to send cards to my relatives and to my fiance's relatives? I am very anxious to do the proper thing and I would certainly appreciate your advice, as I know that you are an authority. B. G.

Don't send announcement cards for your engagement. They aren't good form, and it isn't necessary. Write notes of this happy news to the relatives whom you are not able to go to see to tell them news, and then write notes telling your close friends. After all, these are the only people to whom it is important to tell the news—the rest will find out when the news "spreads," which will be very soon!

An Understanding Friend

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I heard through another person of the divorce of the parents of a friend of mine in another city. Would it be good form for me to write telling her I was sorry to hear this? We carry on a desultory correspondence. LEON.

Yes, if you know her well enough to write such a kind note, it would. I am sure, be very welcome for your friend to know that you are understanding and stand ready with your friendship.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, January 13

According to the very propitious influence of Jupiter, the Major Benefic among the planets this should be a day of great gain and advancement, despite some omens of a sudden and disruptive change and some trivial annoyance through the signing of papers or through letters. Employment shows signs of preferment or honors, a position fortified by Jupiter's strong promise of financial benefit and fulfilled ambitions. Real estate and elders should bring benefits, as should business deals with women.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of progress and prosperity, despite an unforeseen and unwelcome change or journey. Promotion favors, honors and substantial increase of finances are presaged, and also gains through property, labor or elderly persons and institutions.

A child born on this day should be splendidly equipped for success and advancement in life through its own ambitions and hard works, as well as through benefits from others.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Curb the Appetite as the Years Mount

We are always more or less concerned as to what food is best for the child. Unfortunately it is but rarely that we give this thought to the food for the aged.

Dr. Copeland

Many elderly people suffer greatly by reason of diet neglect. Doubtless their length of life has been unnecessarily shortened in consequence.

As we grow older our need for food becomes less. At the same time our need for rest and less work becomes greater. Food is not nearly as essential in older people as it is to youth. Youth must grow and develop. In order to do this, plenty of nourishing food is needed. As we grow older we do not expend as much energy and do less muscular work, so less nourishment is required.

Appetite may be keen as ever, but this should be curbed. The eating habits acquired in more active years are still remembered, and if continued, will lead to grave dangers.

One of the common difficulties in old age is loss of the power of chewing. Steaks and roasts now become more difficult to chew. Instead of these foods, milk and soft-boiled eggs should be substituted.

It is difficult to convince an elderly man of the need for this change in diet. In spite of his age and loss of teeth, he still has a keen appetite for the appealing foods of old. But he should be encouraged to partake of thoroughly cooked cereals, baked potatoes soft-boiled eggs, finely scrapped or minced meat, fish and other soft foods.

In view of the slowing up of the digestive processes as we grow older, fats should be used sparingly. We should not include in the diet rich sauces, cakes and pies and pastries. All fried foods should be eliminated from the diet.

Many old people are constantly cold, and complain bitterly of their difficulty in keeping warm. Whatever energy they have is exerted in their attempt to keep warm. Warm foods and drinks are always given in preference to cold. In extreme cases, it is advisable to give a hot drink of broth or tea between meals instead of cold water.

Fruits and vegetables may be given freely if the ability to chew is good. If the chewing food is poor, vegetables will often cause much distress. In such cases it is best to feed vegetables as you would to infants. The fruits may be given as juices or stewed pulp, and the vegetables should be well cooked and mashed, or served in the form of soup or purees.

The more simple the food and the more temperate its consumption the better. Success in managing the diet of men and women in advanced years demands the same study as is more commonly given the babies.

Hehir will sing the seventh day solemn requiem mass for Father McDermott Thursday at 9 p. m. in the Duquesne University chapel.

OBITUARY

Flint Funeral.

Funeral services for Lloyd E. Flint, 70, one of the oldest newspaper men in Western Pennsylvania, who died yesterday at the home of a sister, Mrs. M. J. Sperling, of 1143 Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg, will be held at the home of a brother, W. H. Flint, of 446 Amberson avenue, at 7:30 p. m., tomorrow. Other services will be held in the Presbyterian Church, Monongahela, Wednesday afternoon. He began his newspaper career with the Monongahela Republican in 1877, and with the exception of a few years, during which he worked in the Pittsburgh postoffice and was interested in the coal business, had spent his entire lifetime in newspaper work. He had been connected with papers in Monongahela, Donora and Charleroi. He was a member of various Masonic bodies and the Monongahela Presbyterian Church.

Griesmer Funeral.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Mrs. Alice E. Price Griesmer, 79, widow of Cyrus Griesmer, who died on Saturday in her home at 59 Killarney street, West Etna. The services will be held in the family home and burial will be in Mt. Royal Cemetery. Mrs. Griesmer was a life-long resident of Allegheny County and had resided in West Etna 50 years. She was a member of Post No. 38, Ladies of the G. A. R., and the Emmanuel Lutheran Church of West Etna. She leaves a son, Harry Griesmer, of West Etna; two daughters, Mrs. Daisy McCarthy, of Chicago, and Mrs. Stella Roswell, of Sharpsburg; a sister, Miss Jennie Price, of Sharpsburg; four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Keenan Funeral.

The body of James A. Keenan, 68, of 1024 Berkshire avenue, Brookline, who died Friday in St. Petersburg, Fla., will arrive in Pittsburgh for burial Tuesday morning. Funeral services will be held in St. Ann's Cemetery, Castle Shannon. Mr. Keenan was formerly district supervisor for the Pittsburgh Railways Company, retiring in September after 30 years' service. He was born in St. Louis and came to Pittsburgh when a boy. He was a member of Pittsburgh Council, Knights of Columbus; Braddock Lodge, B. P. O. Elks and the Resurrection Church. He leaves two sons, Francis and William Keenan, and a daughter, Mrs. Catherine Ruane, of Pittsburgh, and a sister, Mrs. Annie Schlanger, of St. Louis.

Beerman Funeral.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning for Anthony F. Beerman, 70, of 192 South Seventeenth street, who died Saturday. The services will be held in St. Michael's Church and burial will be in St. Michael's Cemetery. Mr. Beerman was born on the South Side but spent the greater part of his life in Ingram. He conducted a grocery store in that borough for 40 years. He returned to the South Side last year, having retired from business three years ago. He was a member of the Holy Name Society and St. Michael's Church. He leaves two brothers, Henry and John Beerman, and four sisters, Sister M. Irene of the St. Francis Order; Miss Philomena, Miss Mary and Miss Catherine Beerman, all of Pittsburgh.

Dr. F. U. Balmer.

Dr. Fred U. Balmer, a veterinary surgeon and a member of the American Veterinary Corps during the World War, died yesterday in his home at 708 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks. He was cited for bravery during his service in France, the citation being signed by Gen. John J. Pershing. Dr. Balmer was born in Berne, Switzerland, and came to the United States in 1908, settling in Bremen, Ind. He held degrees from Bern, Paris and Berlin. At the close of the war he returned to Bremen and came to McKees Rocks five years ago. He leaves a brother, Dr. William Balmer, in Interlaken, Switzerland, and a sister, an attorney in Bern.

Mrs. Richard Barry.

Mrs. Maria Clark Barry, 60, wife of Richard Barry, died Saturday in her home at 1721 Fahnestock street. Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning in Our Lady of the Most Blessed Sacrament Church and interment will be in Mt. Carmel Cemetery. Mrs. Barry was born in Elmira, N. Y., and came to Pittsburgh 30 years ago. Beside her husband she leaves two sons, Paul and Ernest Barry of Pittsburgh; three daughters, Mrs. Katherine Eeh, and Mrs. Samuel Topping of Pittsburgh and Mrs. Joseph McCann of Uniontown and a sister, Mrs. Anna Kearney of Rochester, N. Y.

Boyd Funeral.

BEAVER, Pa., Jan. 12.—Funeral services for Arthur W. Boyd, traffic manager of the Union Drawn Steel Company, will be held at his home here tonight, to be followed by services tomorrow in the McClure Avenue Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh. Mr. Boyd died Saturday. For many years he was connected with the Lake Shore Railroad, prior to joining the steel company here in 1912. He was a member of the Traffic Club of Pittsburgh, and was an elder in the First Presbyterian Church, of Beaver. He leaves his wife, two daughters, Caroline Boyd and Mrs. George Netherland, two brothers, the Rev. H. W. Boyd and the Rev. Frank W. Boyd, both of California, and his mother, Mrs. Joseph W. Boyd.

Mrs. Rebecca Williams.

Mrs. Rebecca L. Rolfe Williams, widow of Lieut. John H. Williams, died yesterday in the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. S. Slocum, 5718 Darlington road. She was born in Concord, N. H., and came to Pittsburgh in 1852. She had resided with her daughter since her husband died in 1923. Mrs. Williams was a member of the Pittsburgh Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Homestead Presbyterian Church. Beside Mrs. Slocum, she leaves three sons, J. H., Edward R. and Harry L. Williams; a brother, E. W. Rolfe, and two grandchildren.

GAMES IN DARK MAKE GASTON QUIT

NIGHT BASEBALL has brought a lot of complaints from the [illegible] since it was taken up by the minor leagers, and now has [illegible] drive some of them out of the business. Of all the interests that have been lodged against the nocturnal pastime, the strangest comes in the retirement of Alex Gaston, former major league catcher, not long ago the receiving end of a battery of brothers on the Boston American League club, for which the youngsters get Milt is still pitching, based on the same rather than competing [illegible] under artificial light in the Pacific Coast League.

Alex Gaston

The ousted Gaston went to the Far West from the Red Sox and finished the 1930 season there, but now he says he is done. He can't stand the sleigs and has decided to give up baseball to enter the jewelry business in Los Angeles. Alex had a couple more seasons [illegible] this system when he hit the Coast League, but the [illegible] finished his fifth [illegible] baseball at night [illegible] Gaston says. The ballbirds and batters, in particular, are constantly complaining, and he says he did not [illegible] players during the games when [illegible].

ANOTHER [illegible] from baseball for reason different [illegible] Pirates, Bob Benton, 31-year-old southpaw [illegible] which was maimed in an automobile [illegible] and the mutilated one of the most [illegible] in the game.

Past 40 and pitching 21 years, Benton has been one of the age marvels of the sport. Since leaving the majors he has been one of the most successful hurlers in Class AA, and as late as 1929 he was good enough to win 20 games for Minneapolis in the American Association against 14 defeats, working in 45 games. Last year his record dropped to eight wins and 12 defeats, but he still showed uncommon durability, as he took part in 41 games and pitched 183 innings.

FOR MANY [illegible] Benton was a lefthanded [illegible] period of [illegible]

He has [illegible] blanked the [illegible] to 0, pitching [illegible] to repeat in the [illegible] but was knocked out in the fourth inning.

BENTON PLAYED ONE of the strangest Pirate engagements on record. Pittsburgh bought him from Cincinnati for $4,000 on August 25, 1915, and he pitched and won one game against the Cubs. But the Giants protested his sale to Pittsburgh on the ground that Cincinnati had made a prior agreement to sell him to New York, with the result that the league annulled the Pirate deal, ordered Benton to join the McGrawites and threw out the game he had won for the Buccaneers.

A. A. Stagg

THE OLDEST OF football coaches, A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago, warns the youth of the land that smartness consists of putting something over on the other fellow. "Youth today is a smart crew," he tells the boys, "but there is a growing tendency to put things over. Honesty still is the best policy, even though it is an antiquated axiom. Play for sport and health. The best fun in life is in feeling like a million all the time. The returns in health to the athlete who trains conscientiously and plays honestly are great. An abundance of health begets an optimistic attitude toward life and makes the road easier."

ANNOUNCEMENT ANTICIPATED TODAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—AP—[illegible] sleuths have maintained the same [illegible] all [illegible] the path of a heavyweight [illegible] bout between Max Schmeling and Young Stribling have been cleared away and that matters are ready to [illegible] on the dotted line.

Some of the more optimistic of the [illegible] the contract to get [illegible] the bout would be made within 24 hours but the latest [illegible] indicate that several minor points and not would have to be [illegible]

NEAR AGREEMENT

[illegible] there were [illegible] Pa Stribling [illegible] manager of the Macon [illegible] heavyweight title [illegible] the Max Schmeling [illegible] Schmeling [illegible] Max Baer [illegible] Schmeling [illegible] Max Baer [illegible] Schmeling [illegible] Philadelphia or [illegible] City.

The biggest hitch in the Max Schmeling negotiations with the Elizabeth Stribling has been the demand that Stribling provisions he whips Max Schmeling in June agree to meet Jack Sharkey in September in defense of his title. Pa has taken the position that the game could not attract two heavyweight title fights in the outdoor season. A compromise may be effected on the basis of an agreement by Stribling to meet Sharkey for the Max Baer at some future date possibly in the summer of 1932.

FAVOR SHARKEY

This effort of promoters to include Sharkey in the heavyweight scheme has been viewed as an attempt to placate the New York State Athletic Commission, which has contended the Boston Sailor as the outstanding contender and rejected Schmeling as his opponent because he refused to sign immediately for a return match with Sharkey.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF SATURDAY—THE CALCO TREE—The famous original "Golden Delicious" tree is owned by the Stark Brothers, fruit growers, of Louisiana, Mo. It was discovered by Paul Stark, high on a rough mountainside in West Virginia, and was found to bear large golden apples with an entirely new and distinct flavor. The right to propogate fruit off this tree is zealously guarded to the extent that the tree is kept in a cage and protected with burglar alarms. From this one tree apple-growers throughout the country have developed orchards that are producing trainloads of these apples annually. ALEXANDER HAMILTON GRADUATED FROM COLLEGE AT THE AGE OF 17—Alexander Hamilton, brilliant soldier and statesman, and first American Secretary of the Treasury, was born in 1757. At the age of 3, he was able to recite the Decalogue in the original Hebrew. He entered King's College (now Columbia University) in 1772 and was graduated in 1774, when only 17 years old. The difficulties with England, which culminated in the American Revolution, were ripening at the time. (Reference: Gertrude Atherton's "The Conqueror.")

SPORT VIGNETTES

That trade names mean as much in boxing as in other marts of business is attested by Ike Dorgan's interesting inside story of the ballyhoo of the fight game which begins in this issue of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. For instance, what right fan doesn't remember

Jim Jeffries, the Boilermaker?
Battling Nelson, the Durable Dane?
Jack Johnson, Li'l Artha?
Georges Carpentier, the Orchid Man?
Jack Dempsey, the Manassa Mauler?
Luis Firpo, the Wild Bull of the Pampas?
Gene Tunney, the Shakespearian Scholar?
Primo Carnera, the Man Mountain?

All of these descriptive titles are the brain children of phrase-makers who have helped make boxing the big busines that it has become. The art of ballyhoo or high pressure salesmanship is behind them.

And it is about the ballyhoo of the fight game that Ike Dorgan, brother of Tad, the famous sports cartoonist, writes. Ike was the publicity director for many of the late Tex Rickard's big extravaganzas latterly known as Battles of the Centuries. His story, which will appear in 48 daily installments, is called "Building Up Big Fights," and it runs the gamut from John L. Sullivan to Max Schmeling, the line of succession of the heavyweight champions. It is one of the most intriguing sports narratives ever indited and will grip the interest of the boxing fans down to the final chapter, carrying them from the days of boxing in the rough and tumble mining camps to its amazing and profitable existence of today, with its background of pretentious amphitheaters patronized alike by millionaire sportsmen and gallery gods and the swell belles of the social register. It's a story you can't very well afford to miss reading.

Wayne (Big) Munn, the former heavyweight wrestling champion, who gained that title by picking up Ed (Strangler) Lewis bodily and tossing him out of the ring in a bout in Kansas City, five years ago, and died from Bright's disease in Texas recently, had a colorful career, beginning with his days as a football lineman at the University of Nebraska, where two brothers, one of whom, Monte, later became prominent as a heavyweight boxer, also starred. . . . Stories printed about him at the time of his death fail to tell of one of the highlights of his wrestling spurge, the night he dropped his title to Stanislaus (Old Man) Zbyszko, in a bout in Philadelphia. The clique that was cashing in on the first of the collegiate wrestling champions was hand-picking his opponents and figured Zbyszko was all in and a "safe" foe for other reasons as well, but was doublecrossed by the baldheaded, barefoot veteran.

After gaining his first fall Zbyszko, knowing the dark and devious ways of the grappling industry and the men connected with it, refused to leave his corner for a rest in the dressing room. . . . Instead, he merely draped his bathrobe about his

TIGERS TRAIN ON COAST

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

The rivalry between Florida and California may now be said to include baseball training camps, with the native son commonwealth gaining a little this year.

The land of the Everglades attracted no less than 10 major league entourages one year ago, with California having only two—the Pirates and Cubs. This year the Detroit Tigers have decided to change from Tampa of the Eastern resort state to Sacramento of the Far-Western state.

Florida, however, will retain nine teams, there being only two changes in the two major leagues. The Reds will forsake their Orlando site for the Tampa setup vacated by the Junealeers. This state also is host to minor league clubs.

Texas will be honored by the presence of two major-league clubs, the Giants and Chicago White Sox to grace San Antonio. Mississippi and Louisiana each will shelter a club of big leaguers.

The sites for the training activities of the major teams are as follows:

The tri-state district's own little basketball campaign wound up its first week of real hoop-to-goodness campaigning Saturday with a distinct Methodist flavoring. By that I mean that Allegheny College's basketeers stole the show, very completely indeed, for last week's work.

Three Methodists, still under the tutelage of crew and foxy George Baker, I think it's Charlie, Bishop, to make or break right off the bat, hopped off and made a three-time junction of West Virginia, defeating Glenville Teachers, West Virginia Wesleyan, Bobcats and West Virginia on successive evenings. Not bad for a starter.

The truth of the matter is that Allegheny expected to have a pretty good ball club this year, because four of the regulars, Bob Garbark, Walt Berger, Dennison and Conn, have been together for three campaigns. They are good now and are going to be a sight better before this present season is put back in the moth balls.

MOUNTAINEERS FADE

As disappointing as Allegheny's record for the week was brilliant was the sad fate of Francis Shadsvold's West Virginia Mountaineers. The Reps started right by beating Salem in a nip-and-tuck game early in the week, but faltered badly and lost to Allegheny and then to West Virginia Wesleyan. The defeat at the hands of the Bobcats was somewhat unexpected, as the Mountaineers had made a better showing against Allegheny than the Cats. Anyway, the game was lost, and how it was lost.

The busiest clubs in the circuit, Waynesburg, Geneva and Thiel, played a two-a-day basketball with so-so results. Waynesburg played three games, winning two of 'em but lost the contest it most desired to win, that with the Dukes here Monday. Juniata and Penn State were tumbled.

Geneva went to the mat four times and Thiel played thrice. The Covenanters started the upset ball a-rollin' by beating Geneva but lost to Tech and the Dukes. Geneva lost to Thiel then rallied to beat Grove City, but fell back again and was taken into camp by St. Thomas. The Covenanters closed their week's campaign by nosing out Catholic University in Washington Saturday.

PITT TAKES N. Y. U.

Pitt returned to the wars with a very triumphal invasion of Gotham kicking New York University's hitherto undefeated quintet around in fine fashion Saturday night, 40 to 22.

Carnegie Tech looked like money from home against Thiel Saturday night, although the Lutherans defense was not one calculated to test the Tartans to the limit. Not exactly. Coach Buzz Hogarth's team passed well, took advantage of the majority of its scoring opportunity and presented greatly improved ball players in the two young sophomores, Red Fergus and Bob Smith.

Westminster won its first test, taking Grove City, and Bethany stuck with the undefeated by banging no decisive triumphs over Juniata and Penn State. The Bisons gave State a fine booting around Saturday night, bring to a close a perfect week for Dutch Hermann; his club didn't win a ball game.

W.-J. OPENS

Three non-conference teams that have not played district opponents as yet will get into the swim this week. Pitt faces West Virginia Wash-Jeff engages Bethany, and Carnegie and the Irish at St. Vincent's are at home Saturday night to Bethany.

Touted performers who have lived up to the advance notices in games to date include:

Flading and Bush, Bethany.
Battles, West Virginia Wesleyan.
Smith and Leonard, Carnegie.
Garbark and Berger, Allegheny.
Douglass and Rice, Westminster.
Laycock and Fegley, Grove City.
Benedict and Stephens, Duquesne.
Wardle, Thiel.
Montgomery, Geneva,
—and Eddie Cubbon, of West Virginia.

The Jeannette Felders, for years prominent contestants in independent basketball, receive their baptism of big league basketball tonight when they make their first appearance in the County League against the Charleroi Merchants in Jeannette.

The contest with the Merchants, the inaugural of the second-half season, will give the Jeannette supporters an excellent opportunity to compare the Felders with the other County League contenders. In engaging the Marchants in its league debut, Jeannette is meeting one of the favorites to carry off the second-half championship.

VARIED SCHEDULE

Basketball enthusiasts in Jeannette and surrounding vicinity who have followed the fortunes of the Felders, are firm in their contention that their favorites compare with the best clubs in tri-state district independent circles and are optimistic over their chances to win the title. Jeannette has been meeting the outstanding teams in the section with considerable success.

The Merchants have bolstered their lineup considerably, and judging from their showing in the late stages of the initial round Al Wildman's passers are certain to make a determined fight to win the crown.

LOOM AS CONTENDER

Tonight's floor program is a varied one. In the West Penn League, Penn Five, of Sharpsburg, last year's champion, opposes the South Side Falcons at Falcon Hall, while St. Michael's is the attraction of the rejuvenated W. U. Hoyles. One game is carded in the Wagner Institutional League, Tom Winnie's Homewood Presbyterians clashing with Kid Born's Trinity Cathedral five on the downtown court. Trinity Cathedral Royals entertain First Presbyterian Church in a Senior Church League fray, while Downtown Y is at Rankin Christian Center in the Allegheny County Amateur League.

Shots and Passes

Leona Cantwell, star forward of the Goldenson Vanities, scored her fifty-fifth field goal in five games when she registered 18 in the battle with Kid Boots club in Ingram. The victors gave the Vanities their thirty-second in a row. A week from tomorrow night the Vanities oppose the Madcaps, composed entirely of former Y. W. H. A. girls.

Eddie Losman, star center of the Duquesne Lafayettes, was the victim of a holdup Saturday night, losing a valuable wrist watch.

The J. J. Mieles have postponed their game with the Lafayettes next Thursday night to Friday due to the fact that the Y. M. H. A. is engaging the Butler Paulists on that evening. Fintex is carded at Charleroi the same night.

The St. Michael's-Ray Schneider West Penn League game next Saturday night will be played on the North Side Community House floor before the regular league game between Community House and the North Side Buicks.

When Father Ricards brings his Butler Paulists here next Thursday night to meet the Y. M. H. A., the team will be accompanied by the reserve quintet. The reserves meet the Y reserves in the preliminary and will be out to avenge an early-season defeat by the locals.

TEX RICKARD — BABY MAXINE — MRS. RICKARD

The happiest days of the late Tex Rickard's life. With his young wife and baby at their Miami Beach (Fla.) home just before his untimely death, two years ago. Ike Dorgan tells of the great fear of the surgeon's knife that led to the demise of the prince of promoters, in the first instalment of his story, "Building Up Big Fights," which appears on this page.

BUILDING UP BIG FIGHTS

By IKE DORGAN

The Man Behind the Ballyhoo for the Late Tex Rickard's Fistic Extravaganzas.

CHAPTER I.

Tex Rickard was the best single-handed press agent that ever lived, although he never wrote a single word of ballyhoo in his lifetime.

Oh, I know that this statement will be challenged by ye olde time editors who still chuckle over the "plants" that were foisted upon them from time to time by the immortals of the press-agenting craft.

To say that Tex Rickard outdid fellows like Tody Hamilton, Toxen Worm, Major John Burke, Charley Dillingham, Billy Sills, Maurice Kirby, Joe Drum, Old Man Schwab, Big Story Berg, Eddie Waistcoat Dunn, Mark Leucher, Dexter Fellows, Wells Hawks, and poor Walter Kingsley is to get my ears boxed from one end of newspaper row to the other, but I stand pat.

Most of these fellows are dead, yet their fairy tales live behind them and will as long as old newspapermen get together to swap yarns of the sweet old past.

OLDTIME BALLYHOOERS

Tody Hamilton, as this generation may not know, was the man who made our grandpas' and grandmas' hearts go plippity-plip with his tales of the lovable elephant, Jumbo, in the early '80s. Who of the old folks didn't hear of this big Barnum elephant. Thank the memory of dear old Tody. Thank him for Barnum's "white" elephant, even if he did the whitewashing himself and the Man from Borneo, to say nothing of Joe-Joe, the dog-faced boy.

Oldtime journalists still will tell you of how Old Man Schwab, of the old Hackenback forces, finally crashed the columns of the old New York Herald.

Schwab had complained rather resentfully that he never had been able to tuck one of his yarns within the rules of the Bennett publication and he was beginning to think that his fame as a star publicity man would wane.

In a roundabout way, he coaxed Tom White, the dramatic critic, to drop into the St. Nicholas Rink to see a private performance of an animal act.

SOME GREAT STORIES

It was to be one of the star acts of his circus. White came. He saw a dramatic attack on the lion tamer with a hair-raising escape by the lions. White returned to his office paler than his name and wrote a double column measure breath-taker about the episode. He didn't even dream that the Old Man had handed him a lemon and great was Schwab's acclaim by the cult when they saw with their own eyes that he had broken into the heretofore ice-cold Herald type.

It was Toxen Worm or Big Story Berg who planted the never-to-be-forgotten Mrs. Pat Campbell tanbark story. Older folks will remember the tanbark yarn. The nimble press agent suddenly discovered that poor Mrs. Pat had a dreadful attack of nerves. The rattle and pat-a-pat of 'orses 'oofs so annoyed the poor English leading lady that tanbark was laid down on all the streets surrounding the block in which her hotel reposed to deaden the noise. That story looped itself around the world a dozen times. It was the darling of ballyhoo tales, although Anna Held's milk bath runs neck and neck with it as a yarn that was swallowed hook, line and sinker by every man, woman and child in—well, I guess the world. The milk bath was the child of Worm's brain. It made Anna Held famous. It was a ballyhoo bull's eye of the first magnitude.

RICKARD A MASTER

Great story-tellers, those boys. And the strange part about it was that they always were forgiven. If the tanbark gang or the milk bawth bubble wasn't good reading, then they lacked imagination in the old newspaper offices. The answer is that they printed them and the poor fishes leaped after the bait.

Rickard didn't belong to that school of press-agenting. There was more truth than poetry in the ballyhoo that he lavished on the sports pages of the great newspapers of the country. I know I handled the ditties for him over a period of 11 years. When I say he was the leader among the world's best ballyhoo men, I know what I'm talking about. Mind you, he wasn't running a circus of freaks. He dealt in honest-to-goodness men. He dug up a freak fighter now and then and made the most of him, but, on the whole, he fed the public the great athletes, the best fighters of his time. Tex had a tantalizing way of pulling a big yarn a day or two before one of his important bouts. He drove us all to distraction at times. I'd be busy trying to oil up the coming show. The box office men would be in a perspiration of anxiety over what they might have considered a slow-moving sale of the better seats. Tex would be facing a financial calamity, we thought. We actually brooded over it because if the show didn't go over we took it upon our own shoulders. We blamed ourselves.

AT BEST IN PINCHES

All hands would be set for the final splurge of publicity when, out of a clear sky, Tex would pull a yarn entirely foreign to the business on hand. We'd tear our hair out by the roots and vote old "Tedge" the jackass sublime.

He wouldn't bat an eye. He'd sensed our concern over the coming show and would walk off slapping his shins with his little walking stick, a long cigar wedged between his slits of lips, to chuckle inwardly. He knew what he was doing; he always knew, every second of his life. Poor devil, the only thing that he didn't seem to know was that you can't gamble with death and always win.

Tex Rickard knew for eight years that he had appendicitis, yet he submitted to an overwhelming fear of the operating room lancet.

Tex lost his little girl through an operation. He always claimed that infection induced by an unclean instrument ended the child's life. He dreaded the thoughts of a surgical knife ever afterward, yet, in the end, he died himself following the removal of a badly-infected appendix.

TEX'S UNTIMELY END

I knew that Tex Rickard suffered from an inflamed appendix. He fell in my arms under the grandstand at Boyle's Thirty Acres

JACKETS DRILL FOR ROAD TRIP

By CARL W. SHAW

Hard work is the watchword which the Yellow Jacket puckermen are gulping today in an effort to wash away the sour taste of the defeat which they suffered at the hands of the London Tecumsehs here Saturday night. Sporting a 3-2 lead three minutes and 15 seconds before the final gong, the Schooley skaters finished on the short end of a 6-3 count after an overtime period. When Coach Charles Reid looks for a lash with which to drive his men in preparation for their coming road trip, all he has to do is refresh the Jackets' memories regarding the finish that was about as tasty as undiluted gall.

DEFEAT COSTLY

The defeat cost the locals fifth place in the league standings, a notch which they had captured only four days earlier, and had toiled for many weeks to gain. To this position is now recaptured before Jan. 20, it will have to be taken in enemy territory, for the Jackets do not play at home again until that time.

Wednesday night the Schooley squad will leave for Detroit, to meet the Olympics there on Thursday, and on Saturday the locals will be entertained by the fast leading Buffalo Bisons at Fort Erie, Ont.

The fine work of Eddie Rodden, former New York Ranger, making his debut here, was one of the bright spots in the Saturday defeat. Eddie, at center, skated with Wings Lloyd McIntyre and Milt Halliday. This trio worked tirelessly, contributed two goals (banged home by Rodden and Halliday) and appeared to be the best goal-getting combination of forwards on the ice.

M'GUIRE RETURNS

The Jackets will be strengthened for their road trip by the return to the lineup of Mickey McGuire, valuable pivot, out for a week with an attack of flu. Mickey expects to skate against Detroit on Thursday, and Goalie Albie Cox, who has been on the sidelines with a broken hand, may be back in the nets when Buffalo is opposed two nights later.

CARUSO SURPRISES

AQUA CALIENTE, Tex., Jan. 12.—(AP.)—Caruso, running in the colors of W. R. Coe, Kentucky sportsman, scored a sensational victory in the California handicap, the $10,000 added stake which headlined the racing program here yesterday, beating Cut Up by a half length. Third place fell to Willie Curtis. The time of the mile and a sixteenth over the slow track was 1:49.10.

MADGE, HOLT BATTLE IN SEMI-FINAL

By HARRY KECK.

Sports Editor.

All may not be gold that glitters, and every pal may not be true silver, but, be that as it may, Pal Silvers, of Brooklyn, is here with us today for a 10-round battle with Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, at Motor Square Garden tonight.

Paul Pirrone

Which leads up to the point that one man's influenza may be another's good luck—or poison. You see, it's this way: Pal is fighting Pirrone because Johnny Indrisano, Boston Italian, who was to be the opponent of Pirrone, is down with the flu, and if old Pal old pal, old pal can win it will be quite a break for him, whereas if Paulie hits him with one of his powerful right-hand drives to a vital spot, dear old Pal-lie will be wishing Old Man Flu hadn't done him a dirty trick by laying Indrisano low and thus projecting him into a tough spot.

BOTH SEASONED BOXERS

Both Silvers and Pirrone have fought many of the tough ones in the welterweight and middleweight divisions. They figure to make quite a fight. It might go better in the home town of either than in a strange city, but it figures to do well enough here, at that. There hasn't been a fight at the Garden for 10 days, aside from the time Matchmaker Jules Beck tried to tell Joe Mazer a funny story in the office out there, and the fans are a bit on edge for any sort of fisticuffs in which two other guys are on the receiving end. Neither Mazer nor Beck has been in training lately, and they lack that certain polish that is to be found only among professionals.

Backing up the main event is a promising set of preliminaries. Two deadly sockers, Larry Madge of Cleveland, and Billy Holt, classy young Negro of Homestead, are in the eight-round semi-final. Jimmy (Frank Klaus) Belmont of Braddock, and Allen Beatty, Negro welterweight, of McKeesport, who beat him last summer, furnish the second bout, and Jimmy (My Boy) Reilly, popular young McKeesporter, trots with Young Bordell of New Kensington in the six-round opener, set for 8:30.

Day, 15-Year-Old Star, Miami Golf Victor

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 12.—(AP.)—A 15-year-old school boy from Chicago chipped his way to a 40-hole victory over a veteran of the links yesterday as Win Day won the championship of the Miami midwinter amateur tournament from Lee Chase, former New York state and Florida amateur champion.

The youngster stroked his way to victory in a repetition of the spectacular golf that marked his advance from the opening match play to the finals. He won the scheduled 36-hole match at the fourth extra hole.

LOOS, ESPINOSA TIE FOR LEAD ON COAST

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12.—(AP.)—Two veteran golf campaigners traveled different roads to finish the second round of the Los Angeles $10,000 open in a tie for first place yesterday. Eddie Loos and Al Espinosa, Chicago pros, had 36-hole totals of 139.

Loos went his untroubled way over the Wilshire Country Club course, compiling a score of 70, even par and with his 69 of Saturday, held the lead for a couple of hours until the enthusiastic Al turned in an amazing 67. Espinosa had a good 72 in the first round.

Leo Diegel, of Agua Caliente, had a total of 140, which established him in third place, a stroke ahead of Frank Walsh, Chicago.

Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, and his New Jersey neighbor, Craig Wood, followed in a tie at 143.

Tommy Rackletts, Youngstown O., pro, had a score of 75-78—153.

"I Hope You Do Not Abandon the Attack"

Gentlemen:

"Spit" is a filthy word. So is the practice of spitting. More serious than any consideration of nicety, however, is the very grave danger of contamination carried in the mouth secretions.

Your attack on this evil in connection with your recent cigar advertising is an effective stroke which should do much to awaken the public to this peril.

I hope you do not abandon the attack. If my endorsement is of any value, please feel free to publish it in your campaign.

Sincerely yours,
J. C. Eldridge
HAMILTON COUNTY HEALTH DIRECTOR.

...one of 56 health officials from 56 different points approving Cremo's crusade against spit or spit-tipping.

Every smoker, every wife whose husband smokes cigars, should read Dr. Eldridge's letter.

"Who are the friends of 'Spit'?"

YOU MAY WELL ASK THIS QUESTION WHEN 56 IMPORTANT HEALTH OFFICIALS HAVE WRITTEN SO STRONGLY AGAINST THE EVILS OF SPIT OR SPIT-TIPPING.

Dr. Eldridge writes: "Your attack on this evil in connection with your recent cigar advertising is an effective stroke."

The war against spit is a crusade of decency. Join it...Smoke Certified Cremo—a really wonderful smoke—mild—mellow—nut-sweet! Every leaf entering the clean, sunny Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

In this period of cold weather and cracked lips, above all insist on a cigar—free of the spit germ.

TIRED MARKET SEEKS REFUGE IN DECLINE

Trading Volume Lighter; Steel Fails to Respond To Report on Tonnage

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP.)—An obviously tired stock market sought refuge in a decline today although the volume of trading was considerably lighter than the turnover on the recent advances.

Heaviness of the rails, which had been counted on to lead the way in any rally, together with the failure of U. S. Steel to respond to favorable unfilled tonnage report were signals for renewed activity by the shorts, who had worked ahead of the unfavorable fourth quarter earnings reports which soon will be appearing.

After an early sag, the market improved somewhat toward noon but specialists in sentiment refused to be stimulated by this rally and the downward drive was resumed, gathering a little momentum as it proceeded. The largest losses were in scarce and speculative shares, although most groups were affected.

Profes Traders who returned to the sidelines are sure that the optimism attendant upon the turn of the year has shown signs of warning and that the market might be said to have discounted much of the seasonal improvement in business that has appeared so far. It was also pointed out that there had been no important corrective reaction in some time and that the reduced short interest had impaired the technical position.

The day's news seemed to exert little influence on prices. Orders for rails continue to foreshadow improvement in steel production, which it is believed will show another increase this week, since some plants are expanding operations this week. Further cuts in tire prices were announced. But silver rallied half a cent in the New York market.

Pronounced easiness was still evident in the money markets. Demand loans sold officially at 1½ per cent, although some of funds offered at 1 per cent.

POWER PROFITS SHOW GAIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—Production of electricity by the electric light and power industry of the country for the week ended January 3 is calculated by the National Electric Light Association as 1,524,253,000 kilowatt hours. Because of the custom of many trades to close for inventory purposes between Christmas and New Year, this week usually registers the lowest electrical output of the year. The latest period was no exception to this rule.

The Atlantic seaboard showed an increase of 5 per cent in output over the same week of last year. The great industrial region bounded by Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Milwaukee, continued to show as a whole, a decrease of 5.8 per cent over last year, while the Pacific coast showed a decrease of 3.9 per cent.

Gross revenues of the industry for November amounted to $175,700,000, the association says. This is an increase of $6,165,600 over the revised totals for October and of .3 per cent over the same month of 1929.

For the first 11 months of 1930 revenues of the industry totaled $1,823,131,700, as compared with $1,760,503,500 for the same period in 1929, or an increase of 3.6 per cent.

Burlington Orders 36,500 Tons Rails

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad has placed orders for 36,500 tons of steel rails involving approximately $1,870,000 as follows: Colorado Fuel and Iron Company receives orders for 17,200 tons, Illinois Steel Company, 13,300 tons, including a carryover from 1930 of 1,400 tons; Inland Steel Company, 6,000 tons.

the day Dempsey and Carpentier fought. He was unable to move with the pain for more than an hour, after I heard him then to attend to his trouble.

"Go get it out, Tex. You'll kick off if you don't. It's nothing to monkey with," I said.

"Those fellers will never git me with their knives. I'll never kick off with any appendix trouble. But I'm sure I'll never go for that knife stuff," he replied.

He did. Before the knife one he did kick off with appendicitis at the end of eight years of suffering. He told Stecher that his stubbornness in the matter would result about the greatest of all the Rickard stories. He recounts of the death and remarkable public funeral from the great House that Tex Built in New York.

He indeed did. He loved Madison Square Garden and he loved Miami. Neither went over the Great Divide for the last he fought the idea of being cut by the doctors.

SHANNON TOPS CURRY, 3-1

By TOM BIRKS.

Playing on a heavy field the Shannon Links team came a little closer to the Keystone League leaders top by defeating Curry 3 to 1 at Curry yesterday. A large crowd attended and in spite of the heavy nature of the ground were rewarded with plenty of action.

Shannon started off kicking uphill but managed to piddle the Curry defense and scored in the first half.

Jan Jura played good football and took a pass from Fabry and slipped the ball past Sedick for the first goal. Honors of Substance for Shannon before the intermission was reached, giving his team a 3-0 lead.

CECI VICTOR

In the second half Curry tried hard to tie up the score and the only goal came from the foot of Kresanis who beat Detsick from close in.

Molly Vander Zuppanz and Bookwalter starred for Curry while McGregan, Val Jura, Jurecsko and Kratoval played a big part in Shannon's victory.

In the other Keystone league battle Cecil nosed out Primrose 5-to-4.

Clark's solo topped Elzroth 4-3. Great team work Versaputro 3-1. Gallatin won over Valley Hill 4-0, as Lt. Burridge topped Mansell 1-0 in the Mon-Yough loop.

GLENDALE TIED

In the Panhandle League Heidelberg and Beaching tied 3-2, Bowes Hill set down Bridgeport 2-1, and Cloverdale bumped Fairfax Juniors 5-4.

Hoeberg won from Scott Township, 6-2, in a schoolboy game while Pittsburgh Youth romped from the Cuddy Stars, 5-2. Penn Lee and Glendale 2-2, and National Tube deadlocked with the Ideal at 3-3, in independent contests.

pugsy fans and awaited the call of time and to finish the job of wiping back the title for his own particular crust. Followed then a defeat of Zbyszko by Joe Stecher, a former champion. A hopeless tangle resulted when Lewis threw Muran in a terrific bout and both Stecher and Lewis claimed the laurels, to which Lewis finally gained a clear edge only to lose them to another [illegible] Gus Sonnenberg, who [illegible] to be beaten by another colleague, Dan George. Meanwhile Jim Londos, the Greek who [illegible] as champion through a victory over Dick Shikat, the German, and the sport is back on a wave of popularity such as it has not known since before the World War.

Londos probably is the best of the present crop of grapplers, a short, stocky, powerful fellow with a world of experience and lots of class and showmanship. Not to mention a large fortune, which he has earned on the mat through many years of unceasing toil.

TIRE MAKERS CUT PRICES

AKRON, O., Jan. 12.—(AP.)—Announcements of sweeping cuts in retail tire prices were made today by three of the largest Akron rubber companies. The General Tire and Rubber Company announced a reduction of 7½ per cent on all passenger tires, but said no cut in truck tire prices has been made or is contemplated.

The B. F. Goodrich Company issued a statement that it has revised its tire price schedule to meet the reductions announced last week by competitive companies.

Official confirmation was obtained of the 6½ to 12 per cent credited to Firestone Tire and Rubber Company since last week.

The Seiberling Rubber Company has announced slashes on all tires of the mail-order grade, but has stated higher priced lines will be practically undisturbed. The Goodyear and Mohawk announcements were expected momentarily.

Connie Realizes That She Is in Love With Duke

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Connie Calvert, rich society girl, shares her home and fortune with her newly found half-sister, Kitty, whom she discovers living in poverty. Kitty falls in love with Jim Tracy, Connie's former fiance with whom she had broken her engagement when she learned he was a fortune hunter. She now fears for Kitty and calls upon Duke Garson, Kitty's underworld friend, to use his influence. Duke refuses to interfere. He tells Connie he is interested in her. Connie, fascinated by Duke, is disappointed to learn he is an adviser to the underworld. She sees him talking to Higgins, the butler. Later, Duke explains that Higgins informed him of her mother's carelessness with her pearls.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Connie looked at Duke Garson nonplussed.

"Mother's pearls. Why, how could Higgins know where she keeps them—"

"It seems he's in the confidence of a maid," Garson told her. "Oh, the maid is quite honest, but poor Higgins is only trying to be. Strange I should run across him up here. He used to be on Tenth avenue; in fact, he once was a waiter in Joe's Place."

"But I can't imagine Higgins being dishonest," Connie said, aghast. "He's been with us two years, and he had splendid references from the employment agency."

"Of course they always do. Higgins, though, isn't a bad egg, really. So far as I know, he is fairly honest, but right now he is in the throes of a great temptation. I suppose I lost his job for him by telling you this, but I'm afraid I was forced to vindicate his confidence."

Connie Amazed

"I'll discharge him at once," Connie said decisively.

"And your next butler will probably steal the pearls instead of dreaming about them," Garson told her. "If your mother must keep valuable jewelry in the house she should at least have a safe built in the wall. I'm quite sure Higgins couldn't manage a combination. If his services are satisfactory otherwise you might keep him without too great a risk. Don't put temptations in his path. I'll give him a talking to. I'll tell him that if anything is missing from this place I'll hold him responsible. He might not be afraid of the police, but he'll be in mortal terror of some of the gangsters. I could send after him if I wanted to. If you want to keep him here in service I'm fairly sure that I can fix him so he'd rather touch a live wire than anything on the place that doesn't belong to him."

Connie regarded Duke Garson with astonished eyes; it was almost impossible for her to believe that he could be so likable and yet face such bitterly tragic associations. His background of some earlier time in his career must have been one of refinement, yet he had apparently abandoned all that was safe and secure to become in a few very admirable ways a flower among warped and stunted growths. Perhaps it was not a passion for distinction, even though he was distinguished only among fellows. With difficulty, moreover, she told herself that the girl was probably not for him.

"If it makes you feel better, I'll speak to Higgins," Garson said, not. "I'm sorry to see him in a good place, but he can get in other quite easily. But don't your mother look up her pearls? I wouldn't worry, but after about Higgins I'll speak to him again, and everything will be quite all right."

Jim Disapproves

His manner was so confident that Connie felt a large part of her uneasiness vanish. If Garson told her that things would be all right her confidence in him was almost such that she felt at ease. No other man could have given her quite the same assurance.

"I think I hear him moving around in the other room now," she said. "Maybe it will be a good idea to go and talk to him now."

"I'd enroll myself have a chat with him," Garson agreed, and rose.

While he was gone Kitty and Jim, refusing flushes with the peculiar excitement that was causing in the rapid progress of their attachment.

"Duke's here," Connie told Kitty. "We talked on the telephone and he wanted to know how you were and I invited him up."

Duke!" Kitty's eyes sparkled. "Oh, that's great, Connie!"

Jim Tracy's face clouded.

"Look here, girls. If you mean that Duke Garson chap, don't you think it's carrying things a little too far to have a man like him coming up here? I'm pretty broadminded, but this fellow is right out of the gutter, and what Kitty needs now is to forget all about that sort of thing and that kind of people."

Connie looked quickly at Kitty to observe the statement. What she was in girl so enamored of, she was willing to attach portentous importance to attributions that fell from the adored one's lips.

Oh, no, I hope to think that way about him, Jim," but Kitty looked in perplexity to Connie. "I don't think that Duke ought to be known by people in high places, but it seems to me that it's none of our business to tell."

Connie frowned, then smiled. "Kitty's right, Jim. We've decided that we're both simply crazy about each other. We've been up in the clouds all day and we're still floating around."

Something seemed to twist inside Connie's breast sharply, painfully, and at the same time exquisitely pleasant. They were up in the clouds and crazy about each other, and she, too, was up in the clouds and crazy about Duke Garson. The realization came to her suddenly . . . as suddenly as a flash of lightning, ripping . . . brilliance across the dark clouds.

Smock Cleverly Pocketed

Pattern 2085

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS.

New fashion trends find their way to that most useful of all garments—the Smock. No longer does it hang in clumsy, unbecoming manner, yet its comfort and ease are still maintained. Slightly shaped and belted, with flattering collar and cleverly designed pockets, the model sketched is the last word in the world of smocks. Isn't it attractive?

Pattern 2085 may be made of linen, cotton broadcloth, rep, sateen, cretonne, rayon, etc. A colorful print is always charming, yet solid colors are quite popular, too. Of course, the smock may be worn without a belt, if desired.

May be obtained only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 34 requires 3¼ yards of 36-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

SEND FOR OUR WINTER FASHION BOOK, containing exquisite models for adults and children and an excellent assortment of transfer patterns and stamped novelties. Price FIFTEEN CENTS. DAILY TRUE STORY — 'Auntie Proverb'

"Well, you've buttered your bread, now you can lie in it!"

Cornelia Graham bit her lip and stared out of the window, because she knew it would be fatal for her Aunt Effie to hear her laugh.

"And I guess," her aunt went on, in her rasping voice, "that you realize it."

Cornelia turned suddenly to her aunt.

"Why not be honest, auntie?" she said, pleadingly.

"Honest? Do you mean to insinuate that I'm dishonest?"

"You hated Jennie Waters when she married Stan Barnes, because you were chasing after him; and you hate Ralph Barnes because he is her son; that's all you have against him; he is the son of the girl who married the man you wanted."

"Listening ears hear no praise; it's all a lot of garbled gossip that you heard. Here you are, going to give up a splendid paying job as school teacher and marry a good-for-nothing young feller; where he got the money for that ring you're wearin' is more'n I know—if it's paid for."

There was a sound of brakes outside. Cornelia glanced out.

"Ralph's coming in—do be a dear, Auntie, be nice to him—don't make a scene, please."

"At least I've always been a gentlewoman, you know the saying, Connie; gentlewoman is that gentlewoman is—"

Cornelia was glad to answer the bell because it was difficult to keep a straight face at such moments.

Ralph Barnes came in smiling, his cheeks ruddy and his eyes bright.

"Hello, there, Miss Graham," he said to Cornelia's aunt, offering his hand. "Shake hands with the luckiest young man in the world."

Miss Graham shook hands with him gingerly.

"Well, I'm thankful you realize that, Ralph Barnes; but what about, Connie?"

"Well, she's a pretty good sport, willing to take a chance with me, and I'll do my best by her."

Claims Land Worthless

"We are going to ride around a little. I spoke to Connie about that swamp land some time ago—did she—"

"I hadn't mentioned it, Ralph, I thought you wanted to wait."

"That swamp land of Connie's can be drained and made worth a little money, Ralph Barnes, and if I was you I wouldn't be so eager in my acreage real estate business to sell off Connie's property for a song."

"I hope to get more than a song for it, Miss Graham. At least a whole grand opera."

"What nonsense is that—a grand opera?"

"He means, Aunt Effie, that he believes the land to be worth more than the proverbial song, and your own land, down there, too."

"My land? You can sell mine for a song. It ain't worth three bars of 'Pop Goes the Weasel'—under water most of the time. It never was worth the taxes."

"It might be. Look here, Miss Graham, I know you are the soul of honesty. I wish you'd give your word not to sell your lake lowlands without first telling me what is offered, nor give your word to sell it until you see me. I think it is going to be worth a lot."

"Were you thinking of buying it?" she asked him.

"If I do, it will be only for a turnover, Miss Graham."

"Turnover? Land sakes, if you turned over Connie's half of that swamp you'd get nothing but mud, and if you turned over my half you'd get mostly water snakes and tadpoles."

"I mean, if I bought it, it would be figuratively, to hold it to sell to someone else, Miss Graham. Your swamp land is just the same as the Meservey land that I bought."

"The Meservey lower bog is even worse than mine and if you paid 25 cents for the whole 140 acres of that Meservey bog you lost at least 17 cents."

"Well, there are values to land other than for farming," Cornelia said, hoping that Ralph could tell her aunt what was in the air.

Aunt Consents

He shook his head. He had given his word.

"Of course you could build house boats on it and rafts," Miss Graham said.

"Well, how about agreeing not to sell it to anyone or promising to sell until you let me know what is offered?"

"If that's going to make you feel any better, I'll give my word, but I think you're kind of looney. If you can get any sort of money for my swamp, I'll say, get it. It's a wise child that makes the mare go."

"Thanks, Miss Graham. I'll bring Cornelia back soon. And then how would you like to take a ride with us?" We have to go on an errand first."

"What kind of a ride?"

"Oh, down the lake road, and back up the ridge to see the sunset, auntie, we'll be right back."

Miss Effie Graham stood by the window and watched Ralph help Cornelia into the car.

"In my day," she said to Mehitabel, her maltese cat, "I'd have fainted dead away if ever a feller saw as much of my leg as that."

Ralph and Cornelia went away on their errand. It was to look over the ancient Putnam mansion, originally built of red sandstone in 1733. It had been rebuilt and the grounds improved, but for the past 15 years it had been abandoned and had fallen into considerable decay.

It could be bought at an amazing low figure, house and 10 acres of ground, if bought at once, as the lawyers wanted to settle the estate. The ancient red sandstone blocks were worth more than the sale price.

They made a careful examination. For about five thousand more it could be put into splendid shape. It would make the handsomest country place in all the county.

"If," Ralph said.

"No ifs, the Sedgewear people will go through with it, you must believe that," Cornelia said.

On the way back they stopped at Ralph's little office in the village. There was a letter for him. He came running out to the car with a whoop. He jumped in and kissed Cornelia, who blushed furiously, for several of the villagers had witnessed this.

"The Sedgewear people have decided. That clay is what they have been looking for. They will buy the whole thousand acres of swamp land and pay my first asking price!" Ralph said.

As he drove, Cornelia read the letter.

When they got back to Miss Graham's cottage, Ralph said, "How would you like five hundred dollars an acre for your bog land, Miss Graham?"

"How would you like to go to the crazy house, where you belong?" she snapped at him.

"Ralph will get that for his. I'll get that for mine, you can have that for yours, Aunt Effie," Cornelia said, "because that black muck happens to be the finest sort of clay for a new kind of fine pottery the Sedgewear people are anxious to make!"

Deal Completed

"Land of Livin'," gasped Aunt Effie, "well, all I can say is, sufficient unto the day is the proof thereof. It isn't for me to tell them Sedgewear folks they're fools. When I see my money in my hand, I'll be convinced, but not until. You know the old saying, that looking a gift horse in the mouth spoils the broth."

The deal went through.

Ralph had by this time called Cornelia's Aunt Effie, "Auntie Proverb." "She'll be convinced now that looking a gift horse in the mouth doesn't spoil the broth!"

They had a great laugh over it. Aunt Effie got her money, Ralph bought the Putnam mansion. It was finally rebuilt.

Cornelia was going to be married at her aunt's home, very quietly.

"I think you're reconciled at last, Aunt Effie, to our marriage, aren't you?" Ralph asked her.

"Well, yes, if you're sure you want to be married, but don't hurry, my dears."

BUILT FOR A FEW, USED BY MANY

THE GRAND STAIRCASE.

The pictures above show scenes in the famous and beautiful Georgian Court, built by the late George Gould, as a home for his family of six children—three boys and three girls.

THE SUNKEN GARDEN AND POOL

This magnificent home, with the great enclosed park around it, built to give happiness to a few, is now the home of Georgian Court College, at Lakewood, run by the Sisters of Mercy. And hundreds of girls, thoroughly educated, enjoy the beautiful buildings and grounds that great wealth created for the pleasure of one small group. [See Editorial]

ONE OF MANY MUSIC ROOMS

Foster's Renown

Pittsburgh Composer Is More Honored by People's Homage Than by Niche in Hall of Fame.

Under the auspices of the Civic Club the sixty-seventh anniversary of Stephen C. Foster's death will be commemorated tomorrow.

Foster melodies will be played on church chimes, and in theaters, restaurants and hotels. There will be exercises at the composer's grave in Allegheny Cemetery.

The observance calls attention to the steadily growing renown of Pittsburgh's illustrious song writer. There was disappointment some years ago over his exclusion from the New York University Hall of Fame. But this lack of a niche there is New York University's misfortune, not Foster's nor Pittsburgh's.

Such honor as a statue in the Hall would have brought him now seems paltry in comparison with the homage that is universally paid Foster by the people.

'Sick Man of Industry'

Scientific Research Is Being Looked to as Agency Most Likely to Find Cure for Coal Trade.

The coal trade has been called "the sick man of American industry." Unlike most of our other industries, it is suffering, not from a mere temporary malaise, but from a chronic and deep-seated affliction.

Two dispatches, one from London, the other from Sydney, Australia, suggest that remote parts of the world, in which coal is produced, are as hard hit as Pittsburgh.

Both dispatches point to scientific research as the agency most likely to find a cure.

In London Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, said in an address that thousands of processes are being worked out by scientists for the recovery of by-products from coal. We shall hear more about them at the international conference on bituminous coal to be held in Pittsburgh.

The United States trade commissioner at Sydney reports that the Australian government has under consideration a proposal to develop the oil shale industry as a means of providing employment for the thousands of surplus miners in New South Wales.

In the United States there is no incentive to increase oil production, but science may reveal other things which coal and coal miners can produce to advantage.

Value of Air-Marks

Usefulness of Signs Painted on Roofs for Guidance of Aviators Is Again Demonstrated.

Flying from Columbus to Pittsburgh with a passenger the other day, Capt. Jack Morris, well-known local pilot, encountered a fog. It was difficult for him to see anything except objects directly below, and he could not see them from altitudes of more than 200 feet. Bewildered, he flew about in haphazard manner for 15 or 20 minutes, then found a building with "Crafton" painted on its roof. That gave him his bearings, and he was able to reach Rodgers Field and to land safely.

We report the incident because it again demonstrates the value of air-marks.

The Sun-Telegraph's campaign a year ago to have the names of communities, with the distance and direction to the nearest airport, painted on roofs for the guidance of aviators, resulted in the erection of more than 60 such air-marks.

Was your town—or, if it is a large town, your neighborhood—air-marked? If not, it should be.

If you already have a sign, it may need brightening up.

Marines in Nicaragua

Presence There Provides Question of Highest Foreign Policy and Rightly Concerns the Senate.

Twice within the last two months the Hearst newspapers have insisted that it was the duty of the United States Senate to find out why more than 1,000 American Marines are still in Nicaragua, acting as local policemen for the Moncada government at the risk of their own lives and at the expense of the American people.

Apparently the Senate has come to the same conclusion after eight or more of our Marines have been killed by bandits in the mountainous jungles of northern Nicaragua.

For without a dissenting vote the Senate adopted a resolution offered by Senator Johnson, of California, calling upon the Department of State for all official exchanges relating to the landing and maintence of American Marines in Nicaragua since 1928.

That was the year in which the Coolidge administration agreed to supervise a national election in Nicaragua upon certain definite conditions.

One of these conditions was that the newly elected government should organize as rapidly as possible a Nicaraguan national guard large enough to police the country.

It was agreed that this force should be officered by American Marines until Nicaraguan officers could be trained to take it over.

It was also agreed that an additional force of Marines should be left in Nicaragua to insure public order until the Moncada government was firmly established.

Two years have elapsed since the Moncada administration entered power. At its request another election has been supervised by an American electoral commission—the congressional election of last year.

But the Moncada government has not lived up to its agreement. It has not organized as rapidly as possible a national guard large enough to police the country. Apparently it has no intention of doing so as long as the Hoover administration will do its police work for it and provide 1,000 American Marines to do what Nicaraguan policemen ought to do.

The Moncada government refused even to increase its own police guard by 250 men during the recent election. So the Hoover administration landed more Marines from our special service squadron to maintain order.

In the light of these facts it is clear that the Hoover administration has either reversed the Nicaraguan policy of the Coolidge administration or lacks the courage to follow it through.

In either case the question is one of the highest foreign policy and rightly concerns the Senate.

Speaking of Reports

By Nelson Harding

The Wickersham report on crime
Has been postponed from time to time.
Reports of the report explain
That it has been delayed again.

Not so the pistols' prompt report
That's oft repeated, quick and short,
As Lawlessness, without delay,
Says it with bullets day by day.

A Girls' School in Palace

Georgian Court, Built by George Gould, Becomes an Educational Institution.

Pictures on this page, which will interest you, were taken in Georgian Court, the beautiful home built for his family by the late George J. Gould at Lakewood, New Jersey.

The court with the other great buildings for indoor horseback riding, indoor tennis, swimming pool, magnificent reception room and numerous other buildings, enclosed in a great park surrounded by a high iron fence, has now become the Georgian Court College of Lakewood, New Jersey. Conducted by the Sisters of Mercy, it welcomes girls without regard to religious denomination.

The college, which is conducted on highest scholastic lines, grants scholastic degrees, with the approval of the board of regents of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and other state departments of education.

The sisters in charge of the college employ the most experienced professors, including many enabled by graduate study abroad, each in his own particular field, to teach his subject most efficiently.

The interesting thing to fathers and mothers of girls ready for college is the fact that the great fortune spent by Mr. Gould on this magnificent place, with its beautiful sunken gardens, athletic fields, magnificent statues and fountains and beautiful paintings, will hereafter be the educational home of hundreds of young American women, succeeding each other as students at Georgian Court.

In this way the home built for a few children, having served its purpose well, as planned, becomes the intellectual home of many.

And thus, what is thoughtlessly called "the luxury of the rich" becomes, in due time, a source of education and great public benefit.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and a jar of guava jelly from "Ham" Guild in far-away Papeete, Tahiti, and I devoured most of it for breakfast, leaving only a spoonful for my wife, poor wretch. Came also a cheery postcard from Barney Oldfield in California.

So to my syndicate office to article myself for another three years of servitude. On to Ray Long's to see trophies brought from Russia and Leon Gordon, the painter, there and others and much rag, tag and bobtail and thence walking through the park in the dusk.

In the evening to the Crystal room of the Ritz with my wife to the debut of W. R. Coe's attractive daughter Natalie and the colonial decorations as fetching as ever I saw. Home later and so little fatigued I turned out a day's toil with no effort soever.

The most infamous New York "fence"—the underworld term for thieves' cache—was Mother Mandlebaum's little dry goods store at Rivington and Clinton streets. She was a shrewd virago who stood by crooks in adversity and drove sharp bargains with them in success. Finally trapped, she escaped to Canada through the wily machinations of Abe Hummel, and died there in exile, worth a million.

* * *

Among crook names of Mother Mandlebaum's era were Sheeny Mike Kurtz, Shang Draper, Johnny Dobbs, George Leonidas Leslie, Sophie Lyons, Molly Holbrook, Black Lena, French Louise, Lizzie Lancie, Pollie Kind and Little Rosie.

Famous dives were The Allen's, Silver Dollar John's, The Haymarket, Billy McGlory's and the "respectable vile house," known as Harry Hill's.

These flourished in the 70's. Edward Van Every has immortalized them in a captivating book called "The Sins of New York." It offers a culling of the files of that pink journalistic jamboree of its time—the Police Gazette.

Few publishers cut such a figure as the Police Gazette's publisher, Richard K. Fox. Out of a barber shop throwaway, he built up a periodical circling the sphere, and made a fortune. Crudely edited and pictorialized, its contents are fascinating today. The cuts were of wood, stressing fast life of the time. Scandal writers "dished the dirt," but with a little more restraint than tabloids today. A scandal slinger of that day bore the pseudonym "Paul Prowler."

Miss Williams is a divorcee out of the social ranks, with a swaggering walk, a boy bob and an effortless sophistication. Hitherto she has been featured only in the drawing room comedy. She lets fly such quips as: "It is best to be married in case of children." Supporting her are two favorites of yesteryear — Richard Carle and Marie Cahill, the former, strangely enough, having grown portly and the later surprisingly thin.

* * *

Another social jester enlivening the season is the irrepressible Vera Maxwell. She is a California girl, without traditional social background, who was "taken up" by Mrs. Ollie Belmont and became her boon companion. For the last five years Miss Maxwell has been the Dorothy Parker, of gay parties in the American set in Paris and along the Riviera. She is often described as "fat, 40 and frivolous."

* * *

It was Miss Maxwell who, upon meeting, for the first time, a tabloid-exploited Romeo in New York, archly inquired: "Glad to meet you. What's the chance for a scandal?"

MACHINE AGE

By Archibald Henderson

Walk through one of the great manufacturing establishments and you will be treated to a depressing sight. In front of each punching machine—say Moloch—stands a worker feeding it pieces of steel by hand. To a lever geared to the mechanism is chained the man! He is handcuffed by the machine. The worker is the slave, the machine is the master. What price the machine? What penalty the machine age?

You will remember "Erewhon," the famous romance of Samuel Butler. The invader of this domain was arrested for carrying a watch. He was put on trial for his life because he had been caught with a piece of machinery!

In this pungent commentary on modern civilization, Butler shows how the machines came near overcoming mankind. The machines begat machines, and proceeded to develop according to laws of their own. So dangerous did they become, so wild and threatening in their behavior that eventually men came to fear them and ultimately to destroy them.

Stuart Chase's "Men and Machines" presents in vivid colors the problem which today confronts the race. Perhaps we shall not have the wisdom and the foresight displayed by the human beings in Butler's fantastic romance. Perhaps we shall go on, continuing to invent mechanical labor-saving devices until we become merely leisured, debilitated automata, bloodless and inert. Chase presents to us the vivid picture of this alternative, in a quotation from E. M. Forster's "The Machine Stops":

"Imagine, if you can, a small room, hexagonal in shape, like the cell of a bee. It is lighted neither by window nor by lamp, yet it is filled with a soft radiance. There are no apertures for ventilation, yet the air is fresh. There are no musical instruments, and yet the room is throbbing with melodious sounds. An armchair is in the center, by its side a reading-desk. In the armchair sits a woman, about five feet high, with a face as white as a fungus. . . . There are buttons and switches everywhere—buttons to call for food, for music, for clothing. There is the hot-bath button, by pressure of which a basin of marble rises out of the floor, filled to the brim with a warm deodorized liquid. There is the button that produces literature. And there are, of course, the buttons by which she communicates with her friends. The room, though it contains nothing, is in touch with all that she cares for in the world. . . . By her side, on the little reading desk, is a survival from the age of litter—one book. This is the Book of the Machine. If she is hot or cold or dyspeptic or at a loss for a word, she goes to the book and it tells her which button to press.

Here is a life of perfect comfort, a blessed Nirvana of unperturbed anemia. But one day the machine stops. After a few gasping moments, life has ceased for the mass of mankind!

Somewhere between the two pictures, the two extremes—the one of Butler, the other of Forster—lies the happy mean for the human race in the future. Science and invention have raised the question which is ever pressing more sternly for rational answer. It especially behooves us to find that answer, for America is the most mechanized nation on earth.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Love-Pikers

The mid-Victorian girl lived in the fear of losing her reputation. The modern girl lives in the fear of losing her heart.

* * *

She will gamble with fate, risk death, jail or broken bones in a wildly speeding car. Risk scandal by doing all sorts of foolish and daring things. Risk drowning in summer; risk her limbs on the skiis in winter, and risk pneumonia all the year round in backless gowns, invisible hose and flimsy clothes.

* * *

She will fearlessly fly a plane and flirt with Eternity in the clouds. She will take parachute leaps, take plunges in Wall Street, swim dangerous channels, and wreck her health in dancing contests.

* * *

But she WON'T gamble on love! She won't take an emotional risk. She won't risk having her feelings or her vanity lacerated by taking a chance on happiness.

* * *

She is afraid of marriage, afraid of love, afraid of her own emotions; and, in heart, she is far more afraid of MEN than her mother was.

She will flirt, she will pet, she will PLAY at love; but she holds on tight to her heart and head. And when she cautiously goes into marriage, she wants all sorts of modern guarantees and safety devices, such as "companionate marriage" and written promises to part, at the first sign of dissension, to make it a "sure thing."

That's the funny thing about modern lovers. Old-fashioned lovers used to vow to cling to each other forever and ever. Modern lovers promise faithfully NOT to cling to each other one moment after the thrills are over.

I wonder WHY. Why take chances on things that don't matter—risk your life for a thrill or an adventure or a medal or a "record"—and refuse to take a chance on the one thing in life worth gambling for?

Of COURSE marriage is a gamble! It is the longest shot on earth. You never know how a husband is going to turn out; you never know how long love will last; you never know how you, yourself, will react to matrimony. And, granted that you could know these things, you never know what exigencies and burdens and problems the years will bring. It's All a gamble!

But so is life—and so is everything else in the world worth having. You take a chance when you go into business or into a profession or on the stage. You may be a flop — or a glittering success. You may fail ignominiously or conquer gloriously. But you are willing to take the risk. It's worth it!

Why not be sporting enough about love and marriage? Why demand or expect a "SURE THING" in the greatest and most glorious gamble on earth?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

There are times when your home is not so spic and span as you wish.

Meals are not so well prepared and the children are not so well looked after as you know they should be.

Conducting a home is like running any other kind of establishment—there are bound to be days when things won't go right.

But you are unfair to create a disturbance on the infrequent occasions when things are upset in your home.

You should be liberal and kind enough to make allowance for conditions which combine at times to thwart the best efforts of a wife.

It is the last straw when you come home irritable to add to the homemaker's vexations of the day.

To be sure, your path has not been one of roses and you think you ought to have the privilege of letting off a little of your bad feeling over the thousand and one troubles of your business day.

A few words of the right kind, kindly advice, an offer to assist in bringing order out of chaos in the majority of cases bring smiles and peace.

The husband plays a large part in making home one of joy and comfort.
